REPUBLICANS SET PACE IN CITY VOTING

Early Balloting Indicates Total
For Mansfield Won't Be More Than 12,000.

STATE VOTING HEAVIER

Cleveland, Cincinnati, Toledo
Districts Exceeding Earlier Vote Estimates.

Mansfield and Richland County voters were going to the polls in smaller numbers than predicted today to ballot on state, district and county officials and judges and a proposed amendment to the Ohio constitution to abolish the short-term election of judges. On the basis of voting at 11 a. m. today, not more than 12,000 votes will be cast in Mansfield, a News-Journal survey showed. A heavy vote late this afternoon, however, would bring the vote nearer the 16,000 total forecast by the election board clerks.

Balloting was heavier this morning in the normally Republican Second ward where approximately one-fifth of the registered voters had voted by 11 a. m. The average dropped off in other sections of the city and in the Fifth and Sixth wards, usually Democratic, less than one-eighth of the registered voters had cast ballots by 11 a. m.

In Precinct B of the Second ward, for example, 95 persons had voted by 11 a. m. The precinct has nearly 500 voters registered. In Precinct H of the same ward 77 of 400 had voted by that time. At about the same time, only 30 of 450 had voted in Precinct E of the Fifth ward and 41 of 350 in Precinct D of the Fourth ward. Precincts in Madison township reported average voting this morning, indicating that the vote there might be heavier than expected since the township areas have a large number of industrial workers who would not be likely to vote until late this afternoon or this evening.

Early voting in most sections of Ohio except the Cleveland and Youngstown districts exceeded estimates. Balloting was heavier than predicted in Cincinnati, Columbus, Dayton, Toledo and Akron. No reason was given for the voting spurt.

GIRLS MISSING

Police Spur Search After
'You're Next' Message.

LYNN, Mass.—(AP)—Police began an intensive search today for two 14-year-old girls who disappeared on separate days about three weeks ago—a search spurred by a third girl's story to police that a man in an automobile accosted her a few days after their disappearance and told her "you're next."

Another factor was that one of the missing girls, Bette Andrews of Lynn, lived less than two miles from the thickly wooded area where Frances M. Cochran's girl slayer never was apprehended.

The other missing 14-year-old is Phyllis Taylor who last was seen on the afternoon of Oct. 12—the day prior to the Andrews girl's disappearance.

Where War Chest Contributions Go

In advance of the Community War Chest drive which gets under way Nov. 9 when 500 "Commandos" start an intensive drive for funds, The News-Journal is publishing a series of daily articles explaining functions of the agencies which participate in the War Chest and Community Fund. The fifth article appears today on Page 3.

What Happens When Japs Meet U. S. Marines In Solomons

With the Japanese reported being driven back today by U. S. Marines and air power on Guadalcanal island these official U. S. Navy photos show what happens when the Nips tangle with the American leathernicks. Above, these dead Japanese soldiers, half buried in the sand, prove the accuracy of the sharp-shooting U. S. Marines fighting the Nipponese in the Solomon Islands. The Japanese men were entrenched behind a log in Tenaru, one of the Solomon islands, and were firing a mortar at the leathernicks when an accurately aimed mortar shell from a U. S. Marine gun landed among them. Below, these four Japanese soldiers tried to infiltrate behind the United States Marine lines in the battle of Raiders' Ridge on one of the Solomon islands. They paid with their lives as did most of the enemy force that engaged the leathernicks.

MORE PAY HIKE REQUESTS LOOM

Other City Departments Due To Follow Example of Police, Firemen.

With city firemen today submitting a petition to council asking a blanket wage increase of $25 monthly, similar to the police department request filed last week, heads of various municipal departments today indicated their workers are signing similar petitions.

Council, at its regular November meeting tonight, probably will table the police-fire petitions until expressions are heard from waterworks, sewer, street, garbage and other department workers.

Neither of the petitions already on file was given consideration at last night's caucus which was called to discuss "must" legislation to be considered in the election night session.

Basic pay for first-year men in both the police and fire departments is $120 a month, increasing to $135 and $160 in successive years. Commissioned officers and plainclothesmen draw above the first-class patrolman or fireman pay.

In the other departments an hourly wage starting at 55 cents prevails, with time-regulated increases to 65 cents.

Ceiling Prices Established For Drinks By Glass

CLEVELAND—(AP)—There's a ceiling price on straight liquor sold by the glass, so dealers can't raise the tariff more than one or two cents per ounce to meet the new federal excise tax. But there's no ceiling on mixed drinks.

A. J. Anderson, director of liquor and beer sales for the Office of Price Administration, so advised dispensers here last night.

He warned the Cuyahoga county liquor dealers association last night there must be no circumvention of ceiling prices by reducing the size of drinks or discontinuing double headers at reduced prices.

He explained that on the basis of a 50-cent tax per quart of 100-proof liquor, the price per one-ounce glass may be raised two cents.

For the same size shot of 90-proof liquor, taxed at 45 cents a quart, the price can be increased one cent.

The Mansfield mother of a seaman who was reported missing on the U. S. aircraft carrier Wasp when it was sunk in the Pacific today had heard a first-hand story of the tragedy from her son's best friend in the navy.

Keeping a promise he made to Paul Kopchok, Mansfield seaman, before the Wasp went down Sept. 15, a sailor pal of the young Mansfielder came to the youth's mother, Mrs. George Kopchok,

Report Predicts Lack of Milk
Over Nation During 1943.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Shortages of fluid or bottled milk in Ohio and the nation were forecast today in the October dairy farm report of the federal and state agriculture departments.

"Even if maximum milk production is attained, a shortage of several billion pounds of milk will occur," the report said in quoting the 1943 outlook forecast by the federal bureau of agricultural economics.

"The deficit must be met by restricting civilian consumption of dairy products or in part by increasing the consumption of skim milk products," the report added.

Offers 3-Pronged Program To Start Allies Toward Victory

A unified United Nations command with General George C. Marshall of the U. S. Army at the helm, seizure of the vital west African seaport of Dakar and placing China in a position where it can be more effective in the war effort are three steps the Allies must accomplish in order to defeat the Axis powers.

This was what Spencer D. Irwin, associate editor and foreign affairs analyst of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, told 200 Mansfield retail merchants and their guests at a dinner meeting last night at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Irwin advanced those three steps after emphasizing that in order to beat the Axis nations

"the Allies must see to it that the Japs and Hitler are not in a position to exploit the vast resources of the Eurasian continent. That is what they are driving for and if they get it their will be the success in the war."

Quoting a statement by Walter Nash, New Zealand commissioner, that "until we have a united command, we will lose the war in the Pacific," Irwin named General Marshall as the man for that task. "Although he is an army man, he knows all power and knows that battleships are still useful for something. We must have one man who has authority, one

FDR STUDIES GROUP REPORT ON MANPOWER

Expected To Establish Firm
Central Control Over All Labor Momentarily.

ENLISTMENT BAN SEEN

Skilled Workers Expected To Be Frozen in Jobs By Executive Order.

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt today studied a report listing for the first time in one-two-three order what's wrong with the federal manpower program.

Mr. Roosevelt's action on the problem—expected momentarily—will be designed to relieve, at least temporarily, a situation which War Information Chief Elmer Davis recently warned was becoming almost as muddled as the pre-Baruch rubber tangle.

The president was expected to tackle the manpower problem with the same strategy he used after the Baruch report was submitted—through establishment of strong central control and rigid conservation of all available manpower resources.

Observers said announcement of the contents of the report, drafted by the labor-management advisory committee of the war manpower commission, probably would be accompanied by an executive order putting its recommendations into effect.

Here's what the order reportedly will mean to a typical worker: He will be forbidden to enlist voluntarily in the armed forces after Jan. 1. The government, through WMC, will attempt to determine thereafter where each person can help win the war most effectively.

If he changes jobs, his new activity must be approved by the U. S. employment service of WMC. No war plant with a government contract can hire him unless it has the proper labor priority rating, even though this may force him to seek work in the next county where his skill is needed more urgently.

He will not be "wasted" on a job which a worker with less skill could perform. Federal in-

WAY OPENED TO BUY FIRE TRUCK

Council Expected to Act Today on Purchase as Priority
Hurdle's Cleared.

Under modified government priorities, the city of Mansfield will be enabled to acquire early delivery of a new aerial fire truck and council tonight will be asked to appropriate $17,000 from the 244-mill fire apparatus fund for this purpose.

An ordinance to purchase was reached at a caucus of council last night, with members agreeing to decide before tonight's session the exact type of equipment desired, the price fluctuating slightly.

Another piece of legislation tends to authorize the sale of fire and police signal alarm mechanism for $12,000. On July 7, $3,000 was voted for the purchase of new equipment.

Other matters to be considered tonight include an appropriation of $1,400 for construction of 20 man-holes in different sections of the city sewer system, an ordinance to establish five feet as the sidewalk width along streets of 35 feet width or more, a storm sewer fund of $150 for construction of a storm drain on Fairlawn avenue near Maple Lake park, and appropriation of $200 from the parking meter fund to complete payment on 414 installed meters.

British Factories Feed Men Cheaply, Mrs. FDR Finds.

LONDON—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, investigating how Britain eats, discovered today that British factories are ahead of many in the United States in feeding their workers.

At the ministry of food she was told about 1,721 government-sponsored "British restaurants" which serve meals for workers for the equivalent of 20 cents and 17,000 factories in which canteens have been set up by the employers.

She saw a typical 20-cent menu—soup, four cents; roast mutton, potatoes and turnips, 12 cents; strawberry custard, four cents; tea or coffee, two cents extra.

Laid out on a table was an exhibit showing a Briton's weekly allowance of those foods which have been rationed—four strips of bacon, 25 cents' worth of meat, a pound of cheese, two ounces of butter, four ounces of margarine, a half pound of sugar, two ounces of tea, a dish of jam and a quart and a half of milk.

Warship Sent To Bottom Off Salvo Island

Knox Warns Against Too Much Optimism
As Ghormley Reports New Enemy
Losses On Oct. 11-12; Battle
Called 'Hell of A Melee'.

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON—The sinking of two additional Japanese cruisers in the South Pacific was reported today by Navy Secretary Knox who coupled with the news an admonition against "growing too optimistic" about the Solomons campaign.

"It is still a bitter, tough fight," he told his press conference. "They (the Japanese) have a fleet of formidable proportions left. We haven't any doubt they'll come back."

Knox's report of sinking two more enemy cruisers was based on late information from Vice Admiral Robert L. Ghormley, now back from his former command as chief of naval operations in the South Pacific.

Ghormley's account of the battle off Salvo island the night of Oct. 11-12, Knox said, listed five enemy destroyers and three cruisers as sunk.

"The engagement was described at Pearl Harbor today by Capt. Ernest G. Small as 'a hell of a melee' which completely surprised the enemy."

(Small) was not as positive as Ghormley as to the results, saying "we sank one heavy cruiser and believe we got two others and one light cruiser, and we know we sank one destroyer and probably four others."

(After the fight, Small said, the battle area "became just a field of burning ships.")

The navy communiqué on that engagement had reported only one enemy cruiser sunk, plus four destroyers and a transport. Ghormley's report thus added two cruisers, and one destroyer to the toll taken of the enemy.

Knox said the additional damage reported by Ghormley was an example of "the ultra conservatism" of the navy in reporting damage to the enemy.

CLASH: British, Nazi Tanks Locked In Fierce Desert Fight

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt—(AP)—A naval communique announced today that coastal forces of the British Mediterranean fleet have carried out operations to the rear of the enemy's lines during the past week.

(By United Press)
CAIRO—British and German tanks were locked in an "armored battle of considerable scale" today on the northern sector of the Alamein line, a British communique said.

The battle was being fought in the coastal sector of the Axis fortifications, where Australian troops had broken through and isolated upwards of 2,500 German and Italian soldiers.

(Radio Berlin described the engagement as "a gigantic tank battle.") The Paris radio, German controlled, said the bulk of Axis tank forces in Egypt were participating in what it called the second phase of the North African battle.

Marshal Erwin Rommel, attempting to prevent the Australians from flanking his coastal positions which would pave the way for a large-scale breakthrough that might unhinge his entire North African campaign, attacked British positions Sunday night, the communique said. His Afrika Korps was thrown back by Lieut. Gen.

B. L. Montgomery's Eighth army imperials. "Yesterday," the communique said, "an armored battle of considerable scale developed. Heavy fighting continues."

The pocketed Axis forces were believed trapped beyond Tel El Eisa (the Hill of Jesus) on the Mediterranean coast.

There were reports that the Australians, who cut across the Alexandria-Matruh railroad after driving a spearhead through the Axis forward positions and turning north, had reached as far as

GAIN: Nazis Edge Ahead Near Nalchik, Weaken At Stalingrad

MOSCOW—(By Associated Press)
A conglomerate force of 50,000 German and Rumanian mountain infantry, armored troops and sailors edged forward today in a narrow sector southeast of Nalchik, but the enemy was reported on the defensive in other parts of that flaming Caucasus battlefield.

The main Nazi thrust, which has forced a Red army withdrawal from Nalchik itself, apparently was aimed at Ordzhonikidze, some 60 miles away on the military road leading to the Georgian pass through the Caucasian mountains.

The army newspaper Red Star said the Germans, weakened by enormous losses at Stalingrad, were unable to mount a general offensive in the Caucasus and were throwing their full available strength into the comparatively local advance below Nalchik.

The Russians, who announced last night they had withdrawn from Nalchik before Axis blows against the left flank of their central Caucasus defense line, sought to hold new positions against superior numbers of the enemy.

The gloomy picture of developments in the southernmost of the combat theaters was relieved, however, by announce-

ICELAND HIT BY INFLATION, PRICES SOAR

Cost of Living Goes To 207 Per Cent of 1939 Figure; Wages High, Too.

By JAMES EARL ROPER (United Press Staff Correspondent)

REYKJAVIK, Iceland — (UP) — The soaring cost of living in inflation-struck Iceland today reached a point more than double the pre-war level.

With the cost of living now standing at 207 per cent of the 1939 figures, members of the controlling Independence (conservative) party predicted it would reach about 232 by the end of October.

Business as well as government circles believed the runaway race between wages and prices would continue. Parliament recently repealed an important part of Iceland's anti-inflation regulations.

The law had prohibited strikes for pay any higher than that justified by the officially-published cost of living index. Under the law, the present index of 207 would have justified wages slightly more than twice as high as in 1939 — and no higher, except for an authorized bonus of 25 or 30 per cent.

Iceland's greatly increased buying power, together with a scarcity of goods, has led to higher prices, which in turn may lead to even bigger wages—the deadly inflation cycle which the United States tried to stop through the fixing of prices.

Although the inflation so far is compared to what may come, it already is squeezing foreigners who must exchange hard-earned pounds or dollars for the Icelandic kronur.

Butter $1.51 a Pound.

In this country which produces a considerable amount of dairy products, butter sells wholesale at $1.31 a pound and cheese at 73 cents a pound. Milk is 23 cents a quart, and eggs are 15 cents each. Tomatoes grown in hot houses — the only ones available — are 75 cents a pound. In all, the index of food prices is 248 per cent of the 1939 level.

Prices on imported articles follow the same line. A street dress which would cost about $10 in the United States sells for $45 in Reykjavik. A good American fountain pen brings $21. A can of American asparagus is priced at $1.39. A man's shirt of inferior quality sells for $4.20.

Laundries charge 30 cents for washing a man's shirt. Having a man's suit pressed costs $1.15; having it cleaned and pressed, $2.77.

Restaurant prices have been stepped up several times in the last year. Twelve months ago, the Hotel Borg charged $1.45 for its large dinner. Now the price is $2.70, plus a 15 per cent service charge. A two-cup pot of coffee at the Borg costs 42 cents.

The price on luxury articles is almost prohibitive. A bottle of hair dressing which sells for ten cents in the United States is priced at $1.20 in Reykjavik.

The increasing prices have been paralleled by increasing wages. A worker who earned about $160 a year before the war now gets about $2,000. Icelandic seamen, who receive war risk allowances, do even better.

High salaries at the water front have attracted so many farm hands that the farm labor situation has been disrupted.

The workers were forbidden to strike for wages above the levels fixed through government regulations. However, the workers adopted the tactics of merely quitting their jobs, and waiting to be re-hired at better pay. With this situation tending to break down the law, the parliament, facing an election in a few weeks, repealed the law outright.

DEER VICIOUS

CLOVERDALE, Cal. (UP) — The first contact with a deer on his first hunt was disastrous for Jimmie Ledford, son of the chief of police.

A magnificent antlered buck jumped out of a thicket, dashed against Jimmie, knocked the rifle out of his hands and sprained his wrist. Then, Postmaster Ray G. Brackett, Jimmie's hunting partner, brought the buck down.

SELF DEFENSE?

AKRON — (UP) — Police have a new story for the books.

A 32-year-old man related that a chicken reached beyond the confines of a poultry market pen and pecked him on the hand. So he went inside "to get even with the rooster"—but was unable to explain feathers on his coat or a broken shop window.

The man was arrested on a suspicious person charge after thieves broke into the market and made off with chickens valued at $40.

Inspired Song

"Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition!" That battle phrase, emanating from the Pearl Harbor attack, and now the title of a popular song, was inspired by Lieut. Howell Forgy, 34, of Haddonfield, N. J., a Navy chaplain, shown above. The phrase was originally credited to Captain William Maguire, a Catholic priest, but Chaplain Maguire denied having coined the expression. It was thought at first that Chaplain Maguire shouted it as he manned a gun on a battleship during the Pearl Harbor attack. Chaplain Maguire asserts he didn't man a gun during the engagement. The phrase, "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition" came out of the Civil war.

URGES OHIOANS TO CUT WOOD

Play Safe, Lay in Supply of Fuel, Advice of Ohio State Forester.

COLUMBUS — (UP) — An Ohio State university forester says that while many Ohio woodlots are well stocked it would be advisable to cut a lot more fuel wood as protection against possible coal shortages next winter.

"People old enough to remember the situation during and following the first World war know that coal at the mines means NO homes," said F. W. Dean, "Transportation tie-ups have about the same effect as an actual shortage of coal."

He said that seasoned wood makes excellent fuel, but that from six to eight months are required to dry it properly. Much of the heat value in green wood is dissipated in vaporizing its own water content.

He recommended cutting wood early in the fall, and selecting as many dead trees as possible so the timber would dry quickly. Spare as many as possible the trees that will grow into good lumber, he added.

ADVISE PLAN FOR FARMERS

Fixed Costs, Operating Expenses Take 20 Per Cent of Income, Economists Say.

COLUMBUS — (UP) — Rural economists at Ohio State university

opined it was up to farm operators to devise a program for meeting fixed costs and operating expenses—estimated at 20 per cent of total cash receipts—and yet leave a labor income for the family.

Farm business volume can be boosted by tilling more acreage, increasing livestock or by getting better production from the same number of units. Increasing the number of units is more likely to raise expenses than a system of greater efficiency, say rural economists.

Crop yields can be increased by planting better seeds, improved use of fertilizer, better tillage practices, more care in harvesting, and other methods commonly used on successful farms. Improved stock, better rations, and culling will increase production in livestock units.

Farm account summaries from 60 average central Ohio livestock farms last year show a labor income variation from $255 to $7,187. In a group of east-central dairy-hog-poultry farms, the labor income varied from minus $154 to a high of $3,539.

EXPECT CUT

Rationing To Reduce Toll Bridge Revenue, Belief.

MARTINS FERRY — (UP) — War-rationed driving may be responsible for the threatened cut in revenue on Ohio's state-owned bridges, but receipts will not decline to such an extent as to affect the state's program of financing the bridge purchases, Ohio bridge commission members said while in Martins Ferry recently.

All bridges are "holding their own" in so far as revenue is concerned despite the sharp decrease in passenger auto travel. However, the commissioners refused to predict what the future holds as gasoline rationing is extended westward. Revenues are used to meet bond and interest charges as well as operating expenses.

Presenting Two Worthy Additions to the Mansfield Community Fund Family

The New Hospital Bureau

On March 1, 1942 when Mansfield General Hospital withdrew from the Community Fund family, a new agency replaced it.

It was the Hospital Bureau, created to aid low-income families in hospitalization.

THIS WAS THE FIRST TIME IN MANSFIELD HISTORY THAT A FUND WAS SET UP TO PROVIDE HOSPITALIZATION FOR PERSONS WITH SMALL AND INADEQUATE INCOMES.

The city has long provided hospitalization for indigents, but no attempt had been made to solve the problems of the families and individuals who were self-supporting, but could not pay hospital bills.

TWO TYPES OF CASES INVESTIGATION MADE

There are two types of cases that are referred to the Hospital Bureau: The pre-admission applicant who asks for aid before entering the hospital, and whose case is referred to the Bureau by the family physician; and the emergency case which is admitted to the hospital in a hurry and the bill is later referred to the bureau for payment.

A CONFIDENTIAL INVESTIGATION IS MADE IN ALL CASES BEFORE CERTIFIED FOR PAYMENT.

The Hospital Bureau does not pay but debits for anyone. If, upon investigation, it is found that the individual or family can very well pay the bill with careful management, the Bureau cannot use contributors' funds to pay the bill. But if the income is barely adequate to meet the necessities of life, it is obvious that the case must have a helping hand to solve the problem of hospital bills. The Hospital Bureau extends that helping hand.

In the eight months that the Hospital Bureau has been in operation, it has paid for 92 individual cases and a total of 652 hospital days. It has paid hospitalization (including ordinary drugs, diagnostic X-ray and use of the surgery room) for maternity cases of War Brides, tonsilectomies, appendectomies, apoplexy, cancer, accident cases, and every type that passes through a medical and surgical institution.

The Hospital Bureau is a part of the Community Fund's Public Health program and will receive $7,230 from the Community Fund's 1943 budget.

Society of St. Vincent De Paul

Representing one of the oldest charitable organizations in the world, The Mansfield Unit of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, joined the Community Fund family this fall. The local unit was organized more than ten years ago and has gone quietly about its charitable and social service program throughout the past decade.

ALL OF THE MANSFIELD CATHOLIC CHARITIES ARE NOW ASSOCIATED UNDER THE BANNER OF THE ST. VINCENT DE PAUL SOCIETY AND FOR THE FIRST TIME ARE A PART OF A GREAT COMMUNITY-WIDE PROGRAM OF SOCIAL BETTERMENT. IT REPRESENTS THE INTERESTS OF MORE THAN 5,000 MANSFIELD CITIZENS, OR APPROXIMATELY ONE SIXTH OF OUR POPULATION.

The St. Vincent de Paul Society has a family welfare program, seeks to rehabilitate social mis-fits, and provides charitable aid.

CHARITABLE PROGRAM SOCIAL PROGRAM

Regardless of employment and wage increases there are always the "unemployable" with us; always the men and women who are not quite self-supporting. The St. Vincent de Paul Society reaches out to aid the sick and the poor with food, clothing and warm bedding. Last year it spent hundreds of dollars for material aid to the poor. The orphaned child also is one of the objects of its charity.

Through its social worker, the St. Vincent de Paul Society reaches out for the "problem" boy and girl, helping them to adjust themselves to the pattern of a normal and stable life. The young, unwed mother, through the St. Vincent de Paul Society, is given care and protection and aided in finding a way to provide for herself and her child.

In the past the St. Vincent de Paul Society has raised its own funds, to carry on its year-round program. This year, in a co-operative movement to bring all fund-raising drives under one big campaign, St. Vincent joins the Community Fund family, which in turn, has joined hands with the War Agencies.

Monday Study Club Members Hear Interesting Paper By Mrs. Frank Daniels; Display and Discuss Antiques Brought By Each.

TWENTY-SIX members of the Monday Study club were entertained at the home of Mrs. George Gaalaas, West Third street. Miss Helen Bein was associate hostess. Mrs. W. E. Slabaugh urged the members to take advantage of the nutrition classes which will be organized in the near future.

For the program, Mrs. Frank Daniels told about the "Earliest Homes in Ohio," in keeping with the club's study of Ohio this year. As a basis for her talk, Mrs. Daniels used the book, "Early Homes of Ohio," by I. T. Frary. After a general review of the old homes of historical and architectural value, Mrs. Daniels concentrated on notable examples of early homes in Mansfield. She described the Town House, the J. E. Gibson home, the Studio Gift Shop, and Oak Hill.

The speaker concluded with a clever, original poem entitled, "A Bit of Homespun Philosophy." An informal discussion followed with members showing and describing the antiques which each had brought with her.

Luncheon was served buffet style from a table centered with a bouquet of mixed fall flowers used effectively with white tapers. The next meeting will be held at Westbrook Country club on Tuesday, Nov. 17, with Mrs. Charles Orr as hostess and Mrs. E. P. Yocum as associate hostess.

Officers were elected at last night's meeting of Ruth chapter, Order of Eastern Star, in the Masonic temple. The following were chosen: worthy matron, Mrs. Miriam Hoffman, worthy patron, Mrs. Willis James; associate matron, Mrs. Augusta McAninch; associate patron, Claude M. Hunter; secretary, Mrs. Sara B. Ford; treasurer, Mrs. Margaret Casperson; conductress, Mrs. Mary Anglin; associate conductress, Mrs. Gertrude Kerr, and trustee, A. Milton Dye.

Announcement was made that an open memorial service will be held on Nov. 12. The next regular meeting will take place on Nov. 16 and initiation will be held at that time.

Grace Guild. Grace Guild of the First Methodist church met Monday at the home of Mrs. Louis Wissinger, 121 Ford street. Twenty-five members and one guest, Mrs. Earl Boals, were present. Mrs. Eugene Linham had charge of devotions, and a review of "Windswept" was given by Mrs. E. G. Corwin. Next meeting will be held Nov. 30 at the home of Mrs. Idle, Helen avenue.

Dinner for Soldier. Staff Sgt. Robert Baker, who is home on furlough from Camp Cook, Calif., was honored with a dinner given Sunday by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Baker, Park avenue west road. Thirty-four were present, including relatives and friends from Akron, Cambridge, Shelby, Belleville, Mansfield and Monaca. Pa. Sgt. Baker's wife resides in Shelby.

Change Meeting Place. Circle Three of the First Presbyterian church will meet Thursday with Mrs. Robert Campbell, Jr., 565 Garfield place, instead of with Mrs. C. C. Wagner. The dessert-luncheon will be served at 1:30 p. m.

Western P. T. A. Mrs. Charles Green, program chairman for the Western avenue school P. T. A., announces that the regular meeting will be held in the P. T. A. room at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday. W. F. Boniece will speak on "The National Program for Education of Aliens and What Mansfield Is Doing in This Program." Mr. Boniece is on the executive board which administers the National Citizenship Education program. Cider and doughnuts will be served.

LIEUT. AND MRS. HERRICK

Vows were exchanged in the chapel at Fort Williams, Me., on Oct. 25, by the former Miss Virginia Ruth Palmer, who until recently was a resident of this city, and Lieut. Eelson M. Herrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Herrick of Russell, Minn. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Charles Wirts Palmer, and the late Mr. Palmer. Lieut. and Mrs. Herrick are making their home at 26 Stanley street in Portland, Me.

Shower Honors Recent Bride

Mrs. Ida Johns and her daughter, Eleanor, were hostesses for a shower at their home, 40 Smith avenue, honoring Mrs. John R. Stoffer, the former Mildred Marie Johns. Fourteen friends of the bride were present for the party which was given Saturday evening.

Prizes in bridge and hearts, divisions of the evening, were won by Mrs. John Imier, Miss Jean Oswald and Mrs. Max Case. Mrs. Stoffer was recipient of many lovely gifts, including a chenille bedspread, presented by the hostesses.

Later in the evening luncheon was served at a long table which had white chrysanthemums and pink rosebuds as the centerpiece. Candles at each end of the table furnished illumination. Mrs. Stoffer is residing at 122 Poplar street.

Mansfield Girl, Shelby Man Wed

October 31 was the date chosen for the wedding of Miss Shirley E. Hopkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Hopkins, 602 Harter avenue, and Maurice L. Bloom, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Bloom of near Shelby. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Roy B. Leedy in the parsonage of the Christ Evangelical church in Napoleon. Vows were exchanged at 3 p. m.

Witnesses were the mothers of the couple. Both Mr. and Mrs. Bloom are graduates of Shelby high school. Mr. Bloom is employed as a machinist for the Ohio Seamless Tube company in Shelby. The couple will live with the bridegroom's parents.

MRS. SANTORE HONORED.

A surprise farewell party was given recently by Mrs. Philip Bohland, 474 Pearl street, for Mrs. Thomas J. Santore, who left Saturday night to join her husband at Staten Island. Prizes in hearts were won by Mrs. Pete Marfia, Mrs. Frank Brucato and Mrs. Joseph Soprano. Luncheon was served at a long table decorated in a patriotic color scheme.

PINOCHLE CLUB.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Butterfield, Dale avenue, entertained the R. A. K. Pinochle club at their home Saturday night. Prizes were won by James Sertell and Mrs. Glenn Collins. Halloween appointments were used on the luncheon table. The next meeting will be at the Collins home on Raleigh avenue.

PAST MATRONS CLUB.

An evening meeting will be held by the Past Matrons club of the Order of Eastern Star, Friday at 7:30 at the home of Mrs. Boyd Wierman, 1090 Park avenue west. Associate hostesses will be Miss Pearl Wierman, Mrs. Nanna Sanborn and Mrs. Mary Schaff.

THREE GROUPS MEET AT WOMEN'S CLUB

Dessert-Luncheon Enjoyed By Two Clubs at 1:30 P. M.; Anniversary Dinner Served at 6 O'clock; Interesting Programs Given.

THE Women's Club was the scene Monday of the respective meetings of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Richland County Medical society, the Round Table club and the Women's Auxiliary to the Typographical Union. Dessert-luncheon was served at 1:30 p. m. to members of the first two groups and the latter organization had its eighth anniversary dinner at 6 p. m.

Mrs. Edson Brown was hostess and Mrs. J. F. Morey was associate hostess to the Women's Auxiliary to the Richland County Medical society. An interesting talk on the "Blood Donors Plan" was given by Dr. Burr Hathaway.

Mrs. Fasoli of Brunswick, director of the eleventh district of the Women's Auxiliary to the Ohio State Medical society, was a guest. She gave a report on work being done by the eleventh district. On Dec. 7, Mrs. S. C. Schiller will be hostess to the group at 1:30 p. m. at her home, 77 Parkwood boulevard.

Hostess for the meeting of the Round Table club members was Dr. Ada Ford. For the dessert-luncheon, the women present were seated at two long tables centered with chrysanthemums in various shades. Guests were Miss Jane Newman, Mrs. Edward Gibson and Mrs. Charles Fox.

Mrs. R. G. Averill conducted the business session and Mrs. Philip Wolfe introduced the speaker, Judge G. E. Kalbtsch, who gave an interesting discussion of "Civilian Defense." Mrs. A. W. Melhack, 1001 Park avenue west, will entertain the club with a dessert-luncheon at her home at 1:30 p. m. on Nov. 16.

Thirteen members of the Auxiliary to the Typographical Union celebrated the organization's anniversary with Mrs. P. M. Wragg as hostess and Mrs. Goodrich of Toledo as a guest. The table was decorated with fall flowers. A contribution was made to the Community War Chest during the business session. On Dec. 1, the group will meet at the home of Mrs. H. W. Merryman, 303 Wayne street. Arrangements will be made for a Christmas party to be given for members and their husbands.

DISCUSS DENTAL CLINIC.

Mrs. Robert Stevens, Park avenue west road, was hostess last evening to six members of the executive board of the board of directors of the Mansfield Dental Clinic. The new clinic is now in operation two days a week. Mrs. Anna Knott, 119 Carpenter road, will be hostess for a meeting at 7 p. m. on Dec. 7.

BETA GAMMA MEETING.

Miss Margaret Tinsley, teacher at the Mansfield Senior high school, will be guest speaker for the Beta Gamma meeting to be held at the Y. W. C. A. Wednesday evening. Her subject will be "India and the War." The various interest groups will have their regular session.

TO MEET THURSDAY.

Mrs. W. F. Fisher, 187 Western avenue, will be hostess Thursday for a meeting of St. Margaret's Guild of the Grace Episcopal church. There will be Holy Communion at 11:30 a. m. and luncheon will be served at 1 p. m. The business session will be held in the afternoon.

Wear Your War Stamps

This modified fedora has a broad rim which dips forward from gathers, where it meets the crown, which is high and narrow and accented with a mass of beige feathers which blend with the brown felt.

JULIE BISHOP of the movies has hit upon the unique idea of decorating her bonnet with war stamps. She supports Olivia de Havilland in Warners' hilarious "Princess O'Rourke."

Aliens and What Mansfield Is Doing In This Program. Bide-a-Wee club—Meeting at the home of Mrs. Fred Marlowe, 132 Benton street, in the afternoon.

Wednesday Study club—Meeting at the home of Mrs. Paul Bovard, 691 Woodland road.

Loudonville

Sunday dinner guests in the Elmer Leininger home were Miss Helen Leininger of Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fulmer, Big Prairie; Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Bernhart, and Mrs. A. I. Morrison, Mrs. Zoe Workman, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Fulmer of Ashland, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Richey, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Smith of McZena and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Leininger and family of Mansfield.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Evans and family of Mansfield and Ralph Russell of Ashland were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Russell and family.

Mrs. Margaret Solomon and John and H. A. Solomon of Mansfield, spent the week-end in Portsmouth with another, H. J. Solomon and family.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Denny, east of town, were Mr. and Mrs. Ross Workman and family.

Can Charm Be Bought or Is It Natural

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"There seems to be something about a charming girl that attracts all men. What is charm? Can it be taught. I have been told there are a number of charm schools. I'm 24 years of age, and have never had a proposal of marriage or anyone seriously in love with me.

"ELSIE."

I haven't seen statistics stating the amount of money rounded up by the charm business this year. But consulting my files I see that two years ago it netted $7,000,000. One charm school boasts of more than half a million pupils and graduates.

To my way of thinking, it's a question whether all these 500,000 women might not appear a good deal like buttons on a card. They're all taught—especially the older ones who have acquired double-mezzanine figures—to swing out and become graceful along the same lines. Personally, I'd hate to get in a crowd where the dowagers were all doing a leg fling when they walked.

Of course, every woman knows, or ought to know, that if she is immaculately neat, thoroughly well-groomed, and doesn't paint herself like a red Indian, that she'll be much more charming than if she presents herself to a critical world in a slovenly or indifferent manner.

In the old days, ladies like du Barry and Ninon d'Enclos were supposed to rule men with no harsher arsenal than a pair of violet eyes, pouting lips or the way they used their lovely hands. These natural charmers went through life conquering all and sundry.

Today, any girl possessed of a liberal dose of horse sense can be her own charm instructor. She gives the gentleman she's charming a chance to talk about himself and the things in which he is interested. She looks her best; she'll even leave off things which grate on his nerves.

If she has access to a kitchen, she can learn to cook him the things he remembers fondly. If she has no kitchen privileges, she can do almost as well with a chafing dish or grill.

One of the great charm experts says the way to hold a man is to appeal to his chivalry. In other words, you must make him think you're a poor, unprotected, little creature who hopes to take his advice on every subject. She doesn't say that if you have a good mind you're to conceal it, but that's understood.

It would take a volume of gigantic proportions to cover the subject of charm. Your charm is your own, something you must work over and discover for yourself.

Geography Is Taught By War

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

The newspaper and radio have helped make us world-conscious, particularly since Pearl Harbor. Daily, the whole family may read or hear of happenings from over the entire world.

What an opportunity we parents and our children have to increase our wisdom in geography while together at home, and chiefly during our hours of leisure.

As I have said before in this column, the school should put more emphasis on place geography than has been done in recent years. Already there is a change in this direction by many teachers.

Regardless of what the school does, we parents can help our children gain strong interest in locating various places of the world referred to in the daily newspaper or radio broadcast.

In order to do this well, we need to have a globe in the home, preferably a large one, and refer to it constantly. Soon the children over five or six will be doing so too.

Polarized Maps.

Next to the globe in importance for the home of children of school age, are polarized maps. They are maps which would be the same as if the surface of the globe were split like an orange and spread out on a flat surface. Many modern schools already are displacing the old flat type of map we parents used with polarized maps. As does the globe, the polarized map gives relative distances and directions as they actually exist.

Spelling Out Names.

The advantage of the newspaper over the radio news in this respect is that there can be time enough with the places spelled out there before the persons participating. Also these participants can talk more agreeably and profitably as they proceed.

In connection with places, their relative positions and distances apart, we parents can, in the family conversation, interest our children in the climate, soil, products, industries and peoples of the various places we read about and hear about daily. This should stimulate valuable reading habits in many children.

The upshot of all such procedure should amount to far more than the geographical knowledge gained by parents and children. It means learning together, talking together. It promotes fellowship, and companionship in the family.

Solving Parent Problems. Q. My boy, 12, is beginning to take money from his parents' purse or pockets and then to try to lie out of it.

A. Don't have trials. Trust rather in more love and companionship with him. My special bulletin on these problems may be had by writing me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Variation of Meat Loaf

By BETSY NEWMAN

Meat loaf is economical, and a variety of recipes helps the budget and the family appetite. Here's a real economy meat loaf in today's recipes, estimated at approximately 55 cents—or 7 cents a helping.

Today's Menu.

Baked or Scalloped Irish Potatoes
Brussels Sprouts
Fruit Salad
Coffee or Tea
Brown Meat Loaf.

1 1/2 lbs. ground beef chuck
1 lb. ground pork loin ends
1 cup onion, cut fine
2 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon pepper

1 cup oatmeal (quick or regular, uncooked)
1 teaspoon mustard
1 cup catsup
1 egg, well beaten
1 cup water

Combine all ingredients in order given, and mix thoroughly. Pack firmly into a loaf pan (about 3 1/2 x 8 1/2 inches) and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) for 1 hour. Slice and serve hot or cold. Serves 8.

Orange Sponge Cake.
1 cup sifted flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
3 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon grated orange rind

1 tablespoon orange juice
6 tablespoons hot milk
Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Beat eggs about 2 minutes, or until thick and light; add sugar and orange rind gradually, beating constantly; add orange juice; fold in flour in small amounts. Add milk and mix quickly until smooth. Turn at once into ungreased tube pan and make in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 35 to 40 minutes, or until done. Remove from oven, invert pan for 1 hour, or until cold.

"The Authority on Authorities"

LIKE A HANDICAP RACE

PLAYING for a contract of only one in either No Trump or suit resembles an even race in which two runners are trying to go about the same distance. But making a game from scratch is more like a handicap, to see if the strong side can take a large number of tricks before the weaker pair can take a smaller number. Having enough sure trick takers, in your own hand and dummy, to add up to the height of your contract, does not assure success necessarily. Before you gather yours in, the defenders may collect enough to beat you.

West refrained from doubling simply because he feared one of his opponents might have a blank in the club suit. He contented himself with merely taking his four aces and beating the contract a single trick.

But there is more to this hand than that. Just examine the holdings of North and South in the different suits. Doesn't the spade suit seem a sure thing to produce five tricks, no matter what happens? Isn't the heart suit bound to furnish two tricks? Aren't there two more certain tricks in

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, November 4

A DAY of negligible or mediocre importance is the prediction made from the minor aspects of ruling planets. Under such influence it is probable that affairs will adhere to strictly routine methods and procedures, and with little by way of climax or fruition. Nevertheless there may be minor obstacles even in this static situation. Sign papers cautiously.

Those whose birthday it is may have a rather routine year with little vital or exciting materializing. It would be well to maintain an even keel, going on a steady and well-planned course in matters that demand action. In all pertaining to writing, publishing, correspondence, transportation or communications as well as litigation it is advisable to use particular precaution.

PENNEY'S

24 YEARS IN MANSFIELD

BIRTHDAY PARTY

WITH SAVINGS YOU'LL REMEMBER ALL YEAR!

WARTIME BIRTHDAYS

Part of every birthday celebration is the looking backward over the years. And as we look back today, we realize that this year puts us all to the shortest test we have ever known.

That test is a very real one for your Penney stores. We must economize as never before, so that your wartime earnings may do their job, and buy War Bonds as well. We must scrutinize with an eagle eye everything we buy for you, so it will be outstanding as a value.

Economy has always been our watchword. And now, as our birthday pledge to you, we promise you renewed watchfulness for your interest to assure you full value for your money. This war-time birthday will be a happy birthday for us only if we can make it a happy one for you!

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Milner sprang to his feet at my father's mandate, and gave a creditable imitation of wholehearted cooperation.

"Oh, of course I understand," he said. "You were afraid of some one might get away of only a telephone message were given. I will go down myself and insure that employees are brought—where?"

"Right here is all right," my father said promptly. "If you agree, Philip."

"I am in your hands," Philip Veritzen said a bit ponderously.

"Then," my father said, "we need delay no longer. If you will kindly lead the way, Mr. Milner."

"You—your are going with me?" he queried.

"Naturally," my father said dryly. "When I make an investigation, I like to begin at the source."

"You surely are making no objection to having Mr. Spencer go with you?" Philip Veritzen asked icily, and the manager's disclaimer was prompt and emphatic.

"Oh, no, indeed," he said. "I shall be exceedingly grateful for his presence and counsel."

"One thing more before we go," my father said, going to the bedroom door. "Dr. Twitchell, we wish to have a conference in this living room. Will either of these patients awaken?"

"Neither of them will waken for hours," the physician answered. "Will it injure the young man if we roll his couch in here?"

"Not in the least," Dr. Twitchell answered, and my father directed Dicky and Milner as they transferred Noel on his couch to the bedroom. Then he, Milner and Dicky left for the grill room.

When they had gone, Philip Veritzen began to pace up and down the room, the shock of finding Noel and Mary unconscious having affected him deeply.

"Will you ask Dr. Twitchell how they seem to him now?" he asked, and I went obediently into the other room and closed the door.

"I think it will be all right to give a bit of encouragement to Mr. Veritzen, don't you?" I asked. "He is exceedingly disturbed."

"That is up to you," Dr. Twitchell replied. "I'm simply playing up to your father."

"Then," I decided, "I wish you'd tell Mr. Veritzen that you believe they are out of danger."

"I'll do that at once," Dr. Twitchell replied, and went into the sitting room, where I heard him reassuring Noel's father.

"But, Mr. Veritzen," he finished, "for reasons of his own Mr. Spencer desires to have Mr. Milner believe that your son and his wife are in a more serious condition than they really are, so—"

"I shall not enlighten him," Philip Veritzen said grimly. He did not speak again, even when I came back, until the arrival of the grill room and kitchen employees.

I did not know whether my father would permit me to remain, but devoutly hoped I would be able to watch this act of the drama. When he asked me to take any notes I thought necessary, I took the goods the gods provided with pad and pencils, as my father spoke in a low voice to Milner.

"You will handle this," he said. "We are only spectators."

There will be no War Chest benefit football game between Mansfield and Madison high school teams. That's official. Neither will there be any benefit card parties, dances or other events for the War Chest, Jane Williams, executive secretary of the Richland county War Chest, informs me.

"We are selling the War Chest to the people of Richland county on the proposition that their direct contributions to the Chest are all that will be asked of them for the organizations represented in the War and Community Chest drives," she explained.

"Under that rule we cannot accept contributions from any benefit affair now, nor at any time in the year covered by the Chest campaign," says Jane. "It isn't that we wouldn't like to sponsor benefit football games and other affairs of that nature, but we must keep our word to the people that their direct contributions to the Chest will be all that we'll ask of them."

That rules out the football game. But the War Chest contributors should be glad to know that they'll not be bothered by benefit games, fights, dances, and card and tea parties.

The Mansfield-Madison game was a dead issue anyhow, and has been since the Tigers defeated Springfield three weeks ago 6-0. The Mansfield team has improved to the point where such a game no longer can be considered a sporting proposition.

But before that Springfield game, Madison fans believed their Rams would be able to give the Tigers a good argument on the football field.

However Madison school officials were not very interested in the idea of a post season tilt between the two teams.

"I believe we could give Mansfield a good game," Coach Al Fendrick told me three weeks ago. "The Tigers would have a big advantage in manpower, but as long as our first team held out we could make things interesting."

"But I doubt very much if our athletic board would want to approve a game they might fear there would be an annual demand for a game with Mansfield, and over a period of years we couldn't hope to give the Tigers much competition."

And just 30 minutes after Al told me that, the news came over the telephone wires from Springfield, Mansfield 6, Springfield 0.

And if that score were not enough, the further improvement shown by the Tigers in their game battle against Mansfield two weeks ago, and their one-sided victory over Portsmouth last week, automatically erased any idea of a game with Madison. But it gave us something to talk about for a while.

Mansfield fishermen are doing all right at Miami university. It is well known in one and all that Bill Peck made the Miami varsity in football and has been playing regularly in the Redskin line.

Now comes word from Oxford that Jack Shipit, former Mansfield high school basketball star, has been selected by the Miami varsity basketball team.

Oddities Bloom on Ohio Grids

Bob Dove's 100-Yard Punt Takes Top Rank.

By FRITZ HOWELL
COLUMBUS—(AP)—Where, except in the torrid free-for-all being staged by Ohio's 500-odd high school football squads, could you find such things as:

1. A team roaring through 50 games without defeat? (Massillon's terrific Tigers, claimants of the state crown the last seven years, are now at the half-century mark.)

2. A junior fullback scoring 219 points in six games, and 416 in less than three seasons? (Bob Lucas, Pauling's bald-headed colored star, has that record.)

3. A punter coming up with a 100-yard kick? (Bob Dove of Ashland did it against Gallion last week—his kick dying on the Gallion 10 as he booted from deep in the end zone.)

4. A punt from the three-yard line failing to reach the scrimmage line, although not blocked? (Shelby booted one against Mt. Vernon from its own three, but the ball squirted off at a right angle in the end zone, and Carroll Cosner, Mt. Vernon tackle, fell on it for a touchdown.)

5. A halfback running for seven touchdowns and an extra point in a single game, but failing to take the day's scoring honors? (Ed Schmidt of Portsmouth Central Catholic did it against Vanceburg, Ky., but Bob Lucas of Paulding "stole the show" with a 46-point spurge against Hicksville, beating Schmidt by three.)

6. A team scoring 120 points in three consecutive games—with a single player getting 117 of the 120? (That's Bob Lucas again, in his last three games.)

7. A team traveling 196 yards for a single touchdown? (Chillicothe did it in beating Cambridge 25-7. Cambridge lost the ball on downs on Chillicothe's 16, and on the first play Bernard Kathe cut through tackle for 84 yards to score, but the ball was called back and Chillicothe penalized to the one-yard line for holding. On the next play John Richardson dropped eight yards into the end zone in punt formation, but ran with the ball and went the full 108 yards to the touchdown.)

8. A team, leading 12-7 with less than a minute to play, losing 13-12 through a "screw," a set of circumstances, as you'll ever witness, and Akron West was the victor, and Akron South the victim. South was sent a sub in for an injured player. Two South players came out, and only 10 were in for the next two plays. Wargo discovered the mistake, sent in an 11th man, but South was penalized to the one-yard line for too many times out, and West drove over for the winning marker. "Doc" claims the touchdown was illegal, but West has the game written in its victory book in extra large letters.

While all that was going on last week-end, the other 18,000 athletes and 500-odd schools were going through the usual routine.

Olle Cline of Fredericktown was idle, but clung to second place in the scoring race with 136 points, as Port Clinton's Chuck Gill checked into the third spot with a three-touchdown spree which gave him 133 for the campaign. Other "century" scorers include Dean Seunbaugher of Chillicothe, 113; Jack Bickel of Newark, 103; Diane Harrington of Hudson, 102; and Johnny Sauer of Dayton Oakwood, 100.

As Massillon trimmed Warren 32-0 for its 50th straight, these teams also extended their winning streaks. Xenia O. S. & S. O. Home (25) defeated West Carrollton 28-6. Tiltonsville (22) defeated St. Clairsville 24-0, and Toledo Liberty (16) defeated Toledo Scott 34-7. Lakewood with 20, Poughat with 23 and Fredericktown with 13, were idle, while Cleveland Lincoln, after winning 17, was held to a scoreless deadlock by Cleveland Rhodes.

Steenbenville, beaten only by Massillon proved it is on the way back as a football power by trouncing Union McKinley 21-13. It was McKinley's first loss, and Steenbenville's first win over that club since 1935. Other teams beaten for the first time this year were Bath (7, Hudson 12), Youngstown Chaney (6, Youngstown Woodrow Wilson 19), and Newark (13, Dover 21).

Still rolling along, with seven wins, are Mansburg, Medina, Columbus North, Defiance, Dover, Boardman and Hudson. Versailles and Clearview have six straight, as have Dayton Roosevelt and Dayton Oakwood, both idle last week. Lakewood, Mansburg, Medina and Tiltonsville haven't been scored on as yet. Unbeaten but tied teams include Canton Lincoln, Greentown, Doylestown, Youngstown Woodrow Wilson, Middleport and Bexley.

Long run, for touchdowns last week-end, in addition to Richardson's 108-yard effort, included: Alex Kites, Columbus South 58; Bob Messie "Tipp City" 51; Dick Roush, Steubenville 35; Kaye Gray, Massillon 75; Ernie Pugh, Springfield Township 91; Hauler Smith, Akron East, 36, 39, 23 and 21; Ed Schmidt Portsmouth Central Catholic 72, 16, 3, 13, 32, 35, 47; Bill Wright, Mt. Vernon 72.

St. Clairsville may have the 28 points and needs only 13 more to equal his record output last year. He still has five games to go.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Don Hutson, Green Bay Packers' pass-nagging end, has boosted his leading National football league scoring to 28 points and needs only 13 more to equal his record output last year. He still has five games to go.

Crazy Legs Hirsch Runs Wild Through Big Ten Foes

MADISON, Wis.—(AP)—Some day, probably after the football season, they are going to make Elroy "Crazy Legs" Hirsch stand still long enough for his shadow to catch up with him.

That's how fast this Wisconsin whiz-bang is. The Badgers' six beaten opponents can vouch for that—and Notre Dame, the team Wisconsin tied 7-7, also can add its bit.

The sophomore halfback made the all-important touchdown against the Irish—zipping 35 yards to do it.

Hirsch's longest touchdown trip of the season was 63 yards against Great Lakes. Two others have come on 19 and 20-yard dashes. In all, he has gained 606 yards in 89 tries for a 6.7 rushing average per play.

Probably this Wausau (Wis.) wriggler's most sensational stunt is shedding tacklers. Five or six men have been known to swarm over him. But he bobs up like a cork in water, leaving his foes clutching only the atmosphere.

Hirsch's freakish leg motion has much to do with his elusiveness. "He's always kicking himself in the legs with his crazy stride," chuckled Coach Harry Stuhldreher. "Why, the kid's the oddest runner I've seen. You might call it padding, or you might say his feet travel in opposite directions."

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FELLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK—(AP)—You don't hear so much about the "T" formation as a cure-all for football troubles this season, but the Shaughnessy-Halas system still is giving grid coaches plenty to worry about. At the weekly education-and-coffee session of the local football writing fraternity yesterday Major Harvey "Jabbo" Jablonsky, army assistant coach, voiced the plaintive suggestion that he'd welcome information on how Notre Dame's "T" could be stopped.

By the way, with all the variations of the "T" that have been tried, has anyone come up with a "strip T's" formation?

20 Picked In Draft By Majors

Family Men Taken By Big League Teams.

CHICAGO—(AP)—A baseball deal for $139,000 in diamond talent strengthened major league lineups today.

The big transaction wasn't for a single player like "Dizzy" Dean or Joe Cronin who have been involved in six figure deals, but rather for the players chosen from the minors yesterday at the annual major league draft meeting.

Fourteen of the players chosen were from class A leagues and were priced at $7,500 each. Five came from class A leagues at a price of $6,000 each and one came from a class B circuit for $4,000.

The draft was the heaviest in many seasons and the large number of players selected was attributed directly to the efforts of major league clubs to bolster rosters that have been depleted by military service calls.

First choice in the draft went to the Phils who selected Pitcher Albert Hodkey from Scranton of the Eastern League. Hodkey won 15 and lost eight last season.

Although well-down on the selection list many diamond observers regarded Pitcher Eddie Albosta as the prize pick of the draft. The 24-year-old right-hander went to Pittsburgh from Montreal. He won nine and lost seven for the Royals last season.

POULTRY FARM NO GOLD MINE

High Prices No Assurance That There's Money In Chickens, Expert Says.

COLUMBUS — (NS) — A bit of advice from the experts to harassed city folk who envision an idealistic existence on a little poultry farm:

Your chances of going broke in the poultry business are much greater than the chances of getting rich—despite the present prices on eggs and poultry.

C. M. Ferguson, specialist in poultry husbandry at Ohio State university, cited records from 235 typical poultry farms to back his claims. In a month the average profit per average flock of 201 average hens was $5179, and the average profit for the average individual hen was 27.2 cents in the 31 days—which is a lot of averages, as Ferguson admits.

The profit mentioned is the difference between the sale price of eggs and the cost of feed and a reasonable stipend deducted for labor. Overhead investment in equipment is not charged, nor is account taken of depreciation of the flock, although an average of 2.5 per cent of the hens died in the 31-day period.

"I don't think there are many urban consumers of eggs who would care to take a job of herding hens at the rate of 27 cents each per month," said Ferguson.

Find New Evidence Of Historic Race In Western Ohio

COLUMBUS — (NS) — A new chapter in Ohio history has been revealed with the exploitation of a pre-historic Indian cemetery in a graveled knoll on the J. W. Kiser farm, three miles north of St. Paris, Champaign county, by H. Holmes Ellis of the Ohio State museum.

Six skeletons were located, apparently placed together in a single pit, Ellis said. These people belonged to an Indian group which occupied northwestern Ohio and southeastern Indiana hundreds of years ago and before the first white settlers came to this territory.

Ellis said that no relics were found with the skeletons, but some of the bones were blackened by fire indicating a partial cremation.

WASHINGTON — (NS) — A 75-room floating hotel-apartment has been towed to the capital from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to relieve congestion in war-crowded Washington. Each room has running water and a lavatory and some have baths.

Seven Months Old, Answers Fans Personally

mediate—and considerable. The fan mail started pouring into the Moline, Ill., home of Vicki's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie C. Swanson. Included were offers from magazines, art companies, advertisers, dairies and just plain fans. So Vicki sat herself down, above, and made a stab at pecking out the answers on her father's typewriter.

GERMANS FEAR U. S. RESOURCES

YOUNGSTOWN — (NS) — The German people fear the resources of the United States, according to Rev. M. Lehman, Mennonite minister returned from the Reich recently who reached his brother's home near Canfield.

The minister was among the Americans to come home on the exchange ship Drottningholm.

"The morale has definitely dampened since the United States came into the war," he said, "but the people inside Germany are still hopeful of beating the Russians."

All you have to do is to decide each day which Large Ad, which Medium Ad and which Small Ad you think will do the advertiser the most good. Just write three names on this blank each day.

$750.00 in awards go to those readers whose selections are nearest to what the majority of readers think. Every week is a separate survey with a dozen or more cash awards each week.

Every member of any family may send in one answer each week and there are many awards each week, but only one award for a good answer will go to any one family in any one week.

I THINK THESE ADS WILL DO THE ADVERTISERS THE MOST GOOD.

EACH DAY OF THE WEEK TO

	LARGE ADS	MEDIUM ADS	SMALL ADS

You are NOT required to write a letter to receive an award.

The awards are decided on the selections above. We would really appreciate it, though, if you would write a note saying what you DO NOT LIKE and ... also ... WHY YOU LIKED some of the good ads.

We sincerely want your suggestions and ideas of how we may improve our advertising service for your benefit. Write your letter in your own way! It's the thoughts and suggestions that matter. You are not being "judged" by your letters. Actually they have nothing to do with the awards ... but ... they will be helpful by giving additional information to our merchants.

Your criticisms and suggestions will be given to the merchants to help them to improve their advertisements BUT the merchants will NOT be given the names of those who write the letters. This is so you may say just what you really think without embarrassment.

DONATES SANITY TO ACTIVITY AT RANDOLPH FIELD

Novelist Gets Air-Noise Jitters, But He's Proud of Men Who Make Racket.

By GEORGE SESSIONS PERRY
SHERTZ, Tex., The Noisiest Place on Earth—(Wide World)—If the American air forces have Hitler half as jittery as they have me, victory is not far away.

My house lies just outside Randolph field, Texas. Every plane coming in or taking off tries to roll its wheels on the peak of my cringing roof. By nightfall my ears are ringing like a heavy house song at high noon and my nerves are tied into knots more complicated than any in the Boy Scout handbook.

But there is no surcease until 2 a. m. when flying comes to an end—for all too brief a period. Between two and six there are only intermittent blasts from 450 horsepower engines being tested by the night shift of mechanics. Then at six o'clock—wham! A chorus of aircraft engines having a total of exactly 10,000,000 horsepower, crashes into violent, sleep-explooding life.

I gulp several cups of coffee, whatever happens the house affords, and settle down to brood. I think of the propeller technicians, of such apparently humane fellows as Sgt. Bill Baschard, a quiet, capable 20-year-old from Zanesville, Ohio. I think of him working carefully in the Randolph sub-depot overhauling the interior machinery of adjustable-pitch propellers painstakingly honing out of the blades dents the size of half a pinhead. I recall that when Bill came into the army at 18 the only job he had mastered was tuning a milk truck back in Zanesville.

Now it is 12.45 p. m. and the pandemonium is begun. Between now and dusk, 2,000 plane crossings will be made above by decolled-debauched domicile.

Purely from a decibel standpoint, the comparative quiet of the tropical hurricane that came to our vicinity recently was a great relief. At least, it crowded those ubiquitous airplanes out of the sky. On this unusually quiet Sabbath there was only the soothing shriek of a 90-mile an-hour wind.

There were 1,500 military planes in the San Antonio area when the hurricane hit. There were hangars for only 10 per cent. Unless somebody worked a robust miracle. The unheated 1,350 having wings like an angel, were, over those an-drome fences, going to fly. And of course they were going to bust themselves into piles of smashed fuselages, curled propellers, and splintered ailerons.

At the San Antonio municipal airport, where there were 75 civilian planes but no air force mechanics, 69 were destroyed. Of the army's 1,500, 10 were lost. Practically all the rest were back on the flying line, inspected, test-down and ready to go, by noon of the next day.

When I saw the spectacular job these ground force technicians had done, I decided to call everything square. I decided to regard my sanity as a contribution to the war effort, and to sit here in Schertz and be driven quietly crazy.

And of course if anybody has taken this lamp seriously then I'm not the only one that's crazy. After all, I came a pretty long way to get to live in this bedlam.

It's a meaningful cacophony that I wish a hundred and thirty million Americans could hear.

War or No War, Santa Still Has a Bagful

Toy? Heck, yes, there's going to be plenty of 'em this year, war or no war. But they'll be different since metal is "out". Santa Claus is doing very well, thank you, with wood cardboard and other materials. Robert LaFevre proves this—and with a wooden gun—at Chicago Merchandise Mart.

TWO MORE JAP CRUISERS SUNK DURING BATTLE

Ghormley Reports Added Loss By Enemy In Fight Off Salvo Island.

He added that he believed the United States had "developed the best type of submarine afloat" and said that their successful offensive action, "justifies that belief."

Asked about the new assignment to be given Admiral Ghormley, who has been succeeded by Vice Admiral William F. Halsey, Knox said he had told Ghormley that he should get a good rest because he had "been under terrific strain out there."

An American drive to squeeze the Japanese out of Guadalcanal appeared under way today as marines, supported by a tempestuous aerial assault, pressed the enemy farther away from the island's hotly contested airfield.

A Japanese retreat, announced by the navy yesterday, carried the Nipponese back as much as two miles in one sector while flying fortresses, dive bombers and American fighter planes blasted and strafed enemy positions throughout the area.

Thus within a week, the fortunes of war had changed the threat of a gathering Japanese naval and land offensive in the southwestern Pacific to strengthened American domination over the Solomon islands prize.

Additional ground gains also were reported last night for the Allied forces in New Guinea. Kokoda, Japanese base on the trail from Buna to the Allied Port Moresby base, was in the hands of Australian jungle fighters, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command said.

The capture of the springboard from which the invaders launched their drive toward Port Moresby was accompanied by another Allied bombing attack on a Japanese convoy off the northeastern coast of New Guinea. The apparent enemy attempt to land reinforcements and supplies at Buna was repulsed.

Another strong force of Allied bombers strafed the enemy and left buildings ablaze at Bonarua and reported heavy destruction in a bombardment of the Japanese-held town of Dilli on the north coast of Portuguese Timor northwest of Australia.

The American offensive in Guadalcanal, most effective thrust since the marine invasion and capture of the airport early in August, followed withdrawal of the Japanese fleet from the Solomon battle area after suffering heavy damage in the sea-air melee off the Stewart islands, Oct. 26.

The enemy toll was found to be greater yesterday with the navy's announcement that American submarines in the far Pacific had sent seven Japanese ships to the bottom and damaged three others in recent raids.

Meantime, American fliers boosted their bag of enemy planes in the Solomons to 529.

Reveal Carrier Sunk By U. S. Vessels

WASHINGTON—(INS)—A joint statement by the navy department and the office of war information disclosed today that the latest American aircraft carrier sunk in the Pacific was sent to the bottom by U. S. vessels after being damaged in the naval air battle with Japanese fleet units northeast of the Solomons.

The statement was signed by Secretary of the Navy Knox and Director of War Information Elmer Davis and attempted to explain the apparent delay in announcing the loss of the carrier.

"Davis in a statement last Wednesday declared that all sinkings of major American vessels in the Oct. 25-26 naval battle had been made public. Subsequently loss of the carrier was disclosed."

"It was recognized in Washington from receipt of the first reports that it might be impossible to bring her (the carrier) to port, and orders were issued to sink her if this could not be done," the statement said.

"But the endeavor was being made, and it was not until Saturday morning that the navy department received reports which made it certain that the endeavor had been abandoned."

Recapture Ground Lost In New Guinea

MELBOURNE—(INS)—Allied troops on the island of New Guinea "have recaptured every foot of ground lost in their previous withdrawal," Lieut. Gen. Sir Thomas Blancy, commander of ground forces in the southwest Pacific, announced today.

"They are now beyond Kokoda," he said.

"The Japanese no longer show readiness to meet them in battle."

U. S. Has 'Strongest' Fleet In Solomons

HEADQUARTERS U. S. FORCES IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC—(Delayed)—One of the most powerful fleets the United States ever has put to sea is operating in the Solomons and the entire area has been reinforced by a flood of new, essential equipment.

This is no secret to the Japanese. They found it out two days ago when their own fleet, which comprised the greatest single concentration of enemy naval power in

FALLS IN BAY

Pilot Still Missing After Mid-Air Plane Collision.

WARWICK, R. I.—(AP)—An army pilot last seen parachuting toward Narragansett bay after his plane collided with another yesterday, still was missing today despite the rescue efforts of four volunteer firemen who narrowly escaped drowning when their boat capsized.

The other pilot, Staff Sgt. J. W. Smallsreed, of Newton Falls, O., brought his plane down at Hillsgrove airport, near Providence. Both pilots were single-seater army trainers.

STUDIES REPORT ON MANPOWER

FDR Expected To Act Quickly To Establish Control Over All Labor.

(Continued From Page 1) spectors will be stationed in war plants to make sure of this, and each plant will be required to prepare "manning tables," scheduling manpower requirements in advance.

If he's a skilled worker with a job in an essential industry, he may be "frozen" in that job indefinitely. But the government will do everything possible to assure him fair wages, good working conditions, and adequate opportunity to appeal from the "freeze" order.

The labor-management report now on Mr. Roosevelt's desk reportedly endorses all of these moves, but it also recommends that WMC and congress be prepared to bolster the manpower program still further, if necessary, at any time in the future, through enactment of a labor "draft" law.

SUFFERS BURNS

Workman Injured as Melted Iron Spills on Foot.

Frank Rath Lexington R. D. 2, molder at the Tappan Stove company, received second and third degree burns on his left foot yesterday afternoon when he spilled melted iron with which he was working.

Rath was admitted to Mansfield General hospital for treatment. Another industrial employee, Frank Brokaw, Mansfield R. D. 2, was injured yesterday afternoon by a piece of steel that slipped from the pile he was stacking at the Great Lakes Steel company and cut the right side of his face and ear lobe. Brokaw was treated at General hospital and then released.

since the Battle of Midway, was forced to withdraw northward from Guadalcanal.

Both sides apparently are eager to make this the final phase of the battle of the Solomons, but the decision still is in doubt. The coming weeks will determine whether the Japanese will be able to reconquer the strategic island group.

For the last week, American supply lines have been choked with new equipment. Airplanes and other essentials have been pouring into the Solomons to relieve the situation for the battle-scarred marine and army veterans on Guadalcanal.

Sees Victory as Not Too Distant

CHUNGKING—(AP)—Foreign Minister T. V. Soong said today at his first press conference since arriving from Washington that he had left the United States with a full and complete assurance of victory in the not distant future.

He said he had come back to China with the impression that "the greatest difficulties are over—the worst has passed, I left with a feeling of restrained optimism."

He said he was struck by the tremendous energies of the United States.

"America is building a great army, a tough army, an unbeatable army," he declared.

Announcing that he would go to England in the near future and would pay a visit to Russia as soon as he had the opportunity, Soong emphasized that China has no territorial ambitions but wants to recover her own territory, "such as Manchuria and Formosa."

Drive Off Japanese New Guinea Convoy

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA—(Delayed)—(AP)—A Japanese convoy headed for New Guinea was forced to turn back today by Flying Fortresses and B-25s when attacked in the face of intense anti-aircraft fire and enemy aerial resistance.

The repulse of the Japanese convoy off Buna was reported in a communiqué from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters which said 7,000 Japanese soldiers aboard the ships had been intended to reinforce the New Guinea positions.

Major William G. Benn, of Washington, Pa., said one large transport was damaged and another possibly damaged, by the hard-hitting bombers. Five Japanese Zero fighters which tried to intercept the attack were knocked out of the sky.

Three waves of bombers went after the convoy which was guarded by warships. The attacks started at dawn and continued until night. Each wave ran into Zeros which paid heavily for their efforts to protect the heavily-loaded

The first wave included Lieut. William P. Thompson, jr., of Canton, Ohio.

Flynn, Teen-Aged Accusers At Court Hearing

Actor Errol Flynn sits between his attorneys in Los Angeles municipal court as two minor girls testify that he had been intimate with them. Betty Hansen, 17 (upper left), is seen after telling the court that the Irish-born actor had committed a moral offense against her during a party at a palatial Bel-Air home. Peggy La Rue Satterly, 17 (upper right), appears at the hearing wearing pig-tails, apparently to accent her youth. Peggy accuses Flynn of attacking her twice aboard his yacht. She was 15 years old at the time.

Professor Wants 1,000 Sky Gazers For Experiment

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—(INS)—Wanted: 1,000 sky-gazers. This was the request of Hans H. Neuberger, assistant professor of meteorology at the Pennsylvania State college, who is conducting a large-scale meteorological experiment.

Professor Neuberger is planning to use 1,000 students to estimate the shade of the sky blue. By this experiment, he expects to find out whether the eyes of the average untrained person can be used as a "measuring stick" in this type of meteorological studies.

The aerologist explained that if the large majority of untrained students can agree on the shade of blue during simultaneous observations, the usefulness of color estimations would be established as a meteorological tool.

OAKLAND, Cal.—(UP)—When Lee Furdur, who had ridden a horse 30 of the 34 years of his life, and had been the proprietor of a riding stable, decided to enlist, he did not enlist in the cavalry, as all his friends naturally thought he would.

Instead, he chose the Marines. "And it wasn't the Horse Marines, either," he explained to them.

ILLNESS FATAL

Mrs. J. J. Whitmore, 67, Dies at Ashland Hospital.

ASHLAND—Mrs. J. J. Whitmore, 67, resident of Ashland county for 52 years, died at 5 p. m. Monday in Samaritan hospital. She had been ill two weeks.

Born in Wayne county March 4, 1875, she came to Ashland county more than a half century ago and had lived in Ashland 44 years. She was a member of the Church of Christ.

The body is at Gilbert's chapel in Ashland where funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 2 p. m. with Rev. Frank W. Brown, pastor of the Church of Christ, officiating. Burial will be in Ashland cemetery. Friends may call at the chapel after tonight.

Surviving are the husband; one son, Ralph, Ashland, R. D. 4, two daughters, Mrs. Charles Smith of Dayton and Mrs. Carl Strang of Ashland, her step-mother, Mrs. Patrick Finley, and a half-sister, Mrs. Ida Jacoby, both of Crestline, four half-brothers, Ray, James, and William Finley, all of Marion, six grandchildren, and one great-grandchild.

From where I sit ...

by Joe Marsh

THAD PHIBBS' house got struck by lightning a couple of nights ago. The kitchen chimney was knocked off and the roof set on fire, and Thad found things pretty lively and exciting for a spell.

The fire was soon out though, thanks to the prompt and efficient work of the local fire department, as the paper says ... and I never seen a man so grateful as Thad.

Chief Ed Carey was sort of embarrassed, I guess, by the thanks that was being heaped on him.

"That's all right, Mr. Phibbs," he says. "That's all right, sir—that's what you pay taxes for."

From where I sit, I'd say Chief Ed's remark seems to have a lesson in it ... a lesson on the way that taxes come back in mighty real benefits to the people.

Take the taxes on beer, for instance—more than 2½ billion dollars, I hear, figuring federal, state and local, in the nine years since beer's been back.

There was a time—remember—when a lot of that money went into the pockets of bootleggers and

GERMANS GAIN NEAR NALCHIK

On Defensive in Other Areas of Caucasus, Lose Ground in Stalingrad.

A steady advance was indicated in the Soviet counteroffensive against the invaders of the western Caucasus.

The Germans moved up again in the central Caucasus despite heavy defensive fire.

After slaying 250 Germans in the repulse of two attacks, the Red army troops were forced to fall back toward the snow-sheeted mountains from Nalchik, the Russians said.

The battle is now reported raging across the rich fields, low mountains and swift rivers of the little Kabadino-Balkaria autonomous republic. The Nazi objective appeared definitely to be conquest of Ordzhonikidze, terminal of the Georgian military highway which leads to Tiflis.

TOO LATE

Absent Voter Applications From Overseas Fail to Qualify.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Four hundred applications for absent voter ballots, most of them from Ohio soldiers of the 145th infantry and 112th headquarters corps, overseas, were received too late to send out ballots. Secretary of State John Sweeney reported today. He said the applications will be turned over to local election boards as a matter of routine.

BURNS TO DEATH ZANESVILLE—(UP)—Harlan Robinson, 80, of Chancellersville, burned to death yesterday when his farm home was destroyed by fire.

REPUBLICANS SET PACE IN CITY VOTING

Early Balloting Indicates Total For Mansfield Won't Be More Than 12,000.

(Continued From Page 1) were expected to cast ballots in the state, about half the vote of two years ago and the smallest since 1920. Ohioans apparently have been too much occupied with the war to become interested in the campaign.

Richland county election board clerks said at noon that the voting was light and orderly. Board headquarters were receiving few complaints from precinct voting places.

Early voters who went to the polling place in a garage at Marion and Bartley avenues found the place closed because there was no heat. The election board ordered the voting booth moved to 66 Bartley avenue. The voting place is in Precinct A of the Second ward.

Mansfield voters received three ballots to mark. Largest of them contained the names of party candidates for state, district, and county offices. The other, a non-partisan ballot, carried the names of candidates for state, district, and county judges, while the third had the proposal to eliminate short-term elections for judges.

Ranking in interest with the contests for governor and 17th district congressman in Richland county was the common pleas judge race between Judge C. H. Huston, Democratic incumbent, and Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, Republican. It was the only contest that created widespread discussion during the listless campaign in the county.

For county offices, Mansfield and Richland county voters chose today between Democratic Auditor Norman L. Wolfe and Republican Alden H. Heath for county auditor and County Commissioner C. L. Mitchell, Democrat, and C. L. Shoup of Plymouth, Republican, for commissioner.

State Representative John L. Catlett, Republican, sought re-election with Ralph C. Lutz, Lexington Democrat, as his opponent.

The 17th district congressional race was between Congressman J. Harry McGregor, Coshocton county Republican, and Samuel A. Anderson, Newark Democrat. In the 27th-29th state senatorial district, P. H. Rogers, Lorain county Republican, had no opposition.

Gov. John W. Bricker, Republican nominee for a third term, figured heavily on the rural areas and villages for his vote, while his Democratic opponent, John McSweeney, former congressman from Wooster, counted on the city vote to put him over.

Other Republican candidates for re-election to state offices were Paul M. Herbert, lieutenant governor; Don H. Ebright, state treasurer; and Thomas J. Herbert, attorney general. Also seeking re-election was Secretary of State John Sweeney, a Democrat. Opposing them were on the vote for lieutenant governor, Robert S. Cox for state treasurer, and Herbert S. Duffey for attorney general, all Democrats and Edward J. Hummel, Republican, for secretary of state.

One congressman-at-large was to be elected, the state losing one in a re-apportionment. Candidates, both incumbents, were Stephen M. Young, Democrat, and George Bender, Republican.

There were six candidates for the three Ohio supreme court posts and two for Fifth district appeals court judge. Candidates for supreme court were Democrats William C. Dixon, Willis W. Metcalf, and Thomas J. Duffy. Charles C. Lomert was the Democratic candidate for re-election to the appeals court.

Republican supreme court judge candidates were Roy H. Williams, Edward C. Turner, and Charles S. Bell, while Robert B. Putnam of Millersburg was the party candidate for the appeals court post.

Norris Senate Seat At Stake Today

OMAHA, Neb.—(INS)—The senate seat of 81-year-old George W. Norris, noted for his party independence in his five terms in the upper house, was at stake today in Nebraska's election.

He was opposed by Foster May, Democrat, and Kenneth Wherry, Republican. The veteran Norris had decided to retire because of his age, but was persuaded by friends to campaign once more.

He did not make a vigorous campaign and his re-election was regarded as doubtful in some quarters. Wherry, his Republican opponent, branded him a "New Dealer."

Nation Watches Dewey-Bennett Scrap

ALBANY, N. Y.—(UP)—New Yorkers held the attention of the nation as they went to the polls today to elect a governor, congressmen, state legislators and other officers.

The bitter fight between Republican Thomas E. Dewey and Democrat John J. Bennett, jr., for the governorship overshadowed other contests because the outcome may have a strong bearing on the 1944 presidential race. A victory for Dewey would project him as a contender for the Republican nomination while Bennett's election would give state Democratic chairman James A. Farley, his chief sponsor, a firm grip on New York's bloc of votes to the Democratic national convention in 1944.

Although recent legislation by congress gave soldiers the right to vote, ballot failed to arrive and apparently most of the troops did not even remember that there was an election back home today.

AEF Fails to Cast Single Ballot

LONDON—(UP)—Election day was just another day of drill and work for American soldiers in Britain, who didn't cast a single ballot.

Nazis Say They Bag 18 Ships In Convoy; Report Doubtful.

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts)—(UP)—The German high command asserted today German submarines operating off Canada's east coast had sunk 16 ships totaling 94,000 tons out of a convoy "on the way from the United States to England."

"There was no confirmation of this from any other source. Similar German claims have proved exaggerated. In London official sources declined to comment."

BRITISH, NAZI TANKS LOCKED IN DESERT WAR

Struggle Near Egyptian Coast Where Eighth Army Trapped 2,500 Axis Soldiers.

They had not completely isolated the Afrika Korps detachment, however. Front reports said German tanks had succeeded in keeping a narrow corridor open and through that wedge Rommel sent heavy Mark IV tanks to aid the trapped infantrymen.

The Afrika Korps was making sporadic attacks all along the Alamein line, but the imperials were holding the positions they had won in their first surge forward.

In the extreme south, near the Qattara depression end of the narrow, 40-mile fighting front, British infantry attacked yesterday, making an important advance, the communique issued jointly by the British Middle East command and the Royal Air Force, said.

Allied aircraft, with American units bearing a major share of the work, maintained an umbrella of supremacy above the troops and tanks struggling on the western desert sands.

Fighter planes intercepted formations of German dive bombers which attempted unsuccessfully, for the second straight day, to bomb British forward positions. At least five German Junkers-87s were destroyed, the communique said.

ACT TO RAISE COAL SUPPLIES

Bituminous Division Officials Change Rulings.

WASHINGTON—(UP)—Action has been taken to increase the supply of Ohio coal in order to help meet expanding wartime fuel requirements, according to Director Dan E. Wheeler of the bituminous coal division.

Wheeler said yesterday that, under an order amending minimum price schedules for Ohio, rail-shipped coal produced at strip mines which have no preparation plants may be washed at prices comparable to that of coal produced by deep mines operating in the same seam. This process would increase the use and quality of coals produced in strip mines, Wheeler said.

OFFERS 3-PLY PROGRAM FOR ALLIED VICTORY

Irwin Cites Need For United Command, Dakar Seizure and Help For China.

(Continued From Page 1) who can be the spokesman and see to it that our diplomacy is in line with our war aims." Once entrenched in Dakar, Hitler will be hard to take and when we succeed in driving Hitler's Rommel out of western Africa, then we can expect to see the opening of the second front, Irwin said, adding that "Italy is the soft spot through which we can expect the Allied invasion, if Rommel is routed."

Hitler's plan of conquest was not developed from his own brain but came from the published writings of an Englishman, Sir Halford J. McKinder, an Oxford professor, Irwin said. Long in advance of the war, McKinder gave a plan showing how landpower alone overcomes sea power.

"This was all integrated into Nazi theories and it is along McKinder ideas that Hitler is conducting the war. Hitler went into war without a navy. He knew he was confronted by British sea power and Anglo-American sea power. However, he followed McKinder's ideas that Hitler is and seized seaports and naval bases.

Hitler now controls the majority of major naval bases and his plan is to push on until every seaport in Eurasian continent will be his. McKinder said who ever controls eastern Europe, controls the heartland of the world. What McKinder means was eastern Russia and the Balkans. McKinder called this region the greatest source of raw materials in the land. We should see to it that Hitler and the Japs will not be in a position to exploit those vast resources."

Washington came in for criticism from Irwin when he declared "Our government should discontinue the practice of feeding us sugar-coated news about the war."

"I'm thinking of the Tokyo raid," he said, "and the impression we were given that all went perfectly. That's what we were told then in order to keep valuable information away from the enemy. Now we are told it was too costly. The enemy not only had the information but they had our planes and our men. The real reason we were not told is that the government has to cover up incompetency in various quarters."

Irwin was introduced by Louis J. Ott and his address preceded a short business meeting at which the retailers re-elected Ott, Ray Calene and M. C. Pecht as directors. Pecht is president of the association.

Clarence Henry of the OPA office in Columbus was a guest at the meeting.

Musical entertainment was provided by Mrs. Elsie Ireland playing the novachord.

U. S. POSTS DO BIG BUSINESS

Soldiers In Australia Go There To Purchase Familiar Items.

(By International News Service) SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA—Dashes of plenty in a land where war has brought shortages of almost every commodity. American post exchanges in Australia are doing a huge trade. Doughboys flock to them for American cigarettes and Coca Cola—which are not procurable elsewhere in Australia—and other goods bearing familiar American brands—including snuff.

One post exchange, under the supervision of Lieutenant Clyde Spinks of Dayton, Ohio, sells 4,000 packs of cigarettes each day, a similar number of both "cokes" and milk drinks each week; serves 750 American style meals and hundreds of hamburgers daily.

Fly sprays and citronella have a big sale at this exchange—fighting equipment for the soldiers' private war against the ever present Australian mosquito.

A recent shipment of stores from the United States included 20,000 tins of snuff—for chewing.

Entire Family Dies As Flames Destroy Home.

OIL CITY, Pa.—(AP)—All six members of the John Huefner family died in their flaming home today near the little village of Fryburg, Clarion county, about 15 miles from Oil City.

Victims were John Huefner and his wife, and their four children; John, six; Theresa, four; David, three, and a one-year-old baby. An overheated coal stove was blamed for the fire.

U. S., British Chiefs Who Map Allied War Strategy

These high-ranking American and British army, navy and air force officers gather each week in Washington to confer on Allied war strategy. They are, left to right, around the table: Hon. R. D. Coleridge of Great Britain; Rear Admiral V. R. Patterson (representing Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, former commander of the British Mediterranean fleet); Field Marshal Sir John Dill, former British army chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Vivian Dykes, secretary to the British conference; Lieut. Gen. G. N. MacReady, former assistant chief of Imperial British general staff; Air Marshal D. S. C. Ewell, senior air officer of the British Royal Air Force in command during the battle of Britain; Lieut. Col. T. W. Hammond, jr., U. S. A.; Lieut. Gen. T. J. McNary, assistant chief of staff, U. S. A.; Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, U. S. A.; Brig. Gen. J. R. Deane, secretary to the American conference; Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of staff to President Roosevelt; Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, and Vice Admiral S. J. Horn, U. S. N., vice chief of naval operations.

What 'Commandos' Fight For

(Editor's Note: This is the sixth of a series of articles on the agencies participating in funds collected in the Community War Chest campaign in Mansfield and Richland county. Each of the articles will deal with one Community Fund organization at home, and one War Chest agency. A "Commando" army of 500 starts Nov. 9 on its objective of raising $140,377.)

Greek War Relief.

The heroic little country of Greece which fought so valiantly against hopeless odds is to share in the War Chest budget to the amount of $4,026.

Slow extermination faces the Greek people unless help arrives soon since its transportation is gone, its scanty crops wiped out, its few industries paralyzed and its supplies looted.

The Greek War Relief is paying the costs of transport of grain and flour in Swedish boats and diplomatic permits allow for the shipment of 15,000 tons each month for a year. The money raised by the Mansfield and Richland county war chest will make possible this shipment.

Swiss and Swedish Red Cross committees will administer the cargo when it reaches Greece and Americans have the assurance of the International Red Cross that food supplies will reach their proper destination.

Y. W. C. A.

The Young Women's Christian association offers girls ranging in age from eight years to young womanhood the same kind of character building and guidance program that the Y. M. C. A. offers to young men.

One of the prominent agencies embraced by the Community War Chest is the Y. W. C. A. is budgeted to receive $6,960 for its work during the fiscal year. Its program furnishes educational and recreational activity for more than 500 girls the majority of whom are of high school age.

The Y. W. C. A. extends its leadership to colored girls in high school and also an advisory mothers' group formed to aid the younger girls' program. Saturday morning classes for eight to 10 year old girls are also open to both white and colored children.

Headquarters twice a week for the young women in war production training at the NYA resident center the Y. W. C. A. building supplies a definite need to these young women who have no other central meeting place in the city.

The local association follows the policy of the national organization in urging better hours and working conditions for employed women and it also joins with the international association in promoting a better understanding between different nationalities.

Two full-time secretaries are employed to carry on the program and 244 volunteer workers lend assistance in various program capacities.

LEARN ABOUT CIVIL SERVICE

Women Voters Hear Address By Atty. George W. Biddle at Monday Meeting.

The workings of the Mansfield Civil Service Commission were outlined before the Richland county League of Women Voters last night by Atty. George W. Biddle, member of the commission, who explained the requirements each applicant must meet to be eligible to the city payroll.

Biddle pointed out that "the methods by which civil service employees are selected are such that political influence does not enter into the case." Further, he added, "civil service is not a scheme by which politicians can be sneaked in through the backdoor."

He explained the efforts made by the commission to keep an eligibility list ready so that vacancies could be quickly filled or additions supplied. He also said that each of the three members on the local commission gives considerable time to investigating the background of the applicant before the latter is given an application blank. Thomas A. Woodard and W. C. Mansfield are the other members of the commission.

Biddle called attention to the fact that Mansfield has 217 persons on the city payroll drawing a monthly salary of $32,674.

His talk was preceded by Miss Lois MacKellar, who traced the development of the civil service system, and it was followed by the report of an interview with Representative John L. Catlett made by Mrs. George Holland. Catlett had pointed out that in his opinion all public officials should not be required to take civil service examinations on the basis that all duties do not require civil service training.

A brief summary of the qualifications of the candidates up for election today were given by Mrs. Russell Moore of the county Re-

TWO MORE JAP CRUISERS SUNK DURING BATTLE

Ghormley Reports Added Loss By Enemy In Fight Off Salvo Island.

He added that he believed the United States had "developed the best type of submarine afloat" and said that their successful offensive action, "justifies that belief."

Asked about the new assignment to be given Admiral Ghormley, who has been succeeded by Vice Admiral William F. Halsey, Knox said he had told Ghormley that he should get a good rest because he had "been under terrific strain out there."

An American drive to squeeze the Japanese out of Guadalcanal appeared under way today as marines, supported by a tempestuous aerial assault, pressed the enemy farther away from the island's hotly contested airfield.

A Japanese retreat, announced by the navy yesterday, carried the Nipponese back as much as two miles in one sector while flying fortresses, dive bombers and American fighter planes blasted and strafed enemy positions throughout the area.

Thus within a week, the fortunes of war had changed the threat of a gathering Japanese naval and land offensive in the southwestern Pacific to strengthened American domination over the Solomon islands prize.

Additional ground gains also were reported last night for the Allied forces in New Guinea. Kokoda, Japanese base on the trail from Buna to the Allied port Moresby base, was in the hands of Australian jungle fighters, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command.

The capture of the springboard from which the invaders launched their drive toward Port Moresby was accompanied by another Allied bombing attack on a Japanese convoy off the northeastern coast of New Guinea. The apparent enemy attempt to land reinforcements and supplies at Buna was repulsed.

Another strong force of Allied bombers strafed the enemy and left buildings ablaze at Bononaro and reported heavy destruction in a bombardment of the Japanese-held town of Dilli on the north coast of Portuguese Timor north-west of Australia.

The American offensive in Guadalcanal, most effective thrust since the marine invasion and capture of the airport early in August, followed withdrawal of the Japanese fleet from the Solomons battle area after suffering heavy damage in the sea-air melee off the Stewart islands, Oct. 26.

The enemy toll was found to be greater yesterday with the navy's announcement that American submarines in the far Pacific had sent seven Japanese ships to the bottom and damaged three others in recent raids.

Meantime, American fliers boosted their bag of enemy planes in the Solomons to 529.

Reveal Carrier Sunk By U. S. Vessels

WASHINGTON—(INS)—A joint statement by the navy department and the office of war information disclosed today that the latest American anti-air carrier sunk in the Pacific was sent to the bottom by U. S. vessels after being damaged in the naval battle with Japanese fleet units north-east of the Solomons.

The statement was signed by Secretary of the Navy Knox and Director of War Information Elmer Davis and attempted to explain the apparent delay in announcing the loss of the carrier.

"Davis in a statement last Wednesday declared that all sinkings of major American vessels in the Oct. 25-26 naval battle had been made public. Subsequently, loss of the carrier was disclosed."

"It was recognized in Washington from receipt of the first reports that it might be impossible to bring her (the carrier) to port, and orders were issued to sink her. This could not be done," the statement said.

"But the endeavor was being made, and it was not until Saturday morning that the navy department received reports which made it certain that the endeavor had been abandoned."

Recapture Ground Lost In New Guinea

MELBOURNE—(INS)—Allied troops on the island of New Guinea "have recaptured every foot of ground lost in their previous withdrawal," Lieut. Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, commander of ground forces in the southwest Pacific, announced today.

"They are now beyond Kokoda, he said.

"The Japanese no longer show readiness to meet them in battle."

U. S. Has 'Strongest' Fleet In Solomons

HEADQUARTERS U. S. FORCES IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC—(UPI)—(Delayed)—One of the most powerful fleets the United States ever has put to sea is operating in the Solomons and the entire area has been reinforced by a flood of new, essential equipment.

This is no secret to the Japanese. They found it out two days ago when their own fleet, which comprised the greatest single concentration of enemy naval power in the

FALLS IN BAY

Pilot Still Missing After Mid-Air Plane Collision.

WARWICK, R. I.—(AP)—An army pilot last seen parachuting toward Narragansett bay after his plane collided with another yesterday, still was missing today despite the rescue efforts of four volunteer firemen who narrowly escaped drowning when their boat capsized.

The other pilot, Staff Sgt. J. W. Smallwood, of Newell Falls, O., brought his plane down at Hillsgrove airport, near Providence. Both pilots were single-seater army trainers.

STUDIES REPORT ON MANPOWER

FDR Expected To Act Quickly To Establish Control Over All Labor.

(Continued From Page 1) spectors will be stationed in war plants to make sure of this, and each plant will be required to prepare "manning tables," scheduling manpower requirements in advance.

If he's a skilled worker with a job in an essential industry, he may be "frozen" in that job indefinitely. But the government will do everything possible to assure him fair wages, good working conditions, and adequate opportunity to appeal from the "freeze" order.

The labor-management report now on Mr. Roosevelt's desk reportedly endorses all of these moves but it also recommends that WMC and congress be prepared to bolster the manpower program still further, if necessary at any time in the future, through enactment of a labor "draft" law.

SUFFERS BURNS

Workman Injured as Melted Iron Spills on Foot.

Frank Rath, Lexington R. D. 2, molder at the Tappan Shoe company, received second and third degree burns on his left foot yesterday afternoon when he spilled melted iron with which he was working.

Rath was admitted to Mansfield General hospital for treatment.

Another industrial employee, Frank Brokaw, Mansfield R. D. 2, was injured yesterday afternoon by a piece of steel that slipped from the pile he was stacking at the Great Lakes Steel company and cut the right side of his face and ear lobe. Brokaw was treated at General hospital and then released.

since the Battle of Midway, was forced to withdraw northward from Guadalcanal.

Both sides apparently are eager to make this the final phase of the battle of the Solomons, but the decision still is in doubt. The coming weeks will determine whether the Japanese will be able to reconquer the strategic island group.

For the last week, American supply lines have been choked with new equipment. Planes and other essentials have been pouring into the Solomons to relieve the situation for the battle-scarred marine and army veterans on Guadalcanal.

Sees Victory as Not Too Distant

CHUNGKING—(AP)—Foreign Minister T. T. S'ung said today at his first press conference since arriving from Washington that he had left the United States with a full and complete assurance of victory in the not distant future.

He said he had come back to China with the impression that "the greatest difficulties are over—the worst has passed. I left with a feeling of restrained optimism."

He said he was struck by the tremendous energies of the United States.

"America is building a great army, a tough army, an unbeatable army," he declared.

Announcing that he would go to England in the near future and would pay a visit to Russia as soon as he had the opportunity, S'ung emphasized that China has no territorial ambitions but wants to recover her own territory "such as Manchuria and Formosa."

Drive Off Japanese New Guinea Convoy

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA—(Delayed)—(AP)—A Japanese convoy headed for New Guinea was forced to turn back today by Flying Fortresses and B-25's which attacked in the face of intense anti-aircraft fire and enemy aerial resistance.

The report of the Japanese convoy off Buna was reported in a communiqué from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters which said 7,000 Japanese soldiers aboard the ships had been intended to reinforce the New Guinea positions.

Major William G. Benn, of Washington, Pa., said one large transport was damaged and another possibly damaged, by the hard-hitting bombers. Five Japanese Zero fighters which tried to intercept the attack were knocked out of the sky.

Three waves of bombers went after the convoy which was guarded by warships. The attacks started at dawn and continued until night. Each wave ran into Zeros which paid heavily for their efforts to protect the heavily-loaded

She was 15 years old at the time.

Professor Wants 1,000 Sky Gazers For Experiment

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—(INS)—Wanted, 1,000 sky-gazers. This was the request of Hans H. Neuberger, assistant professor of meteorology at the Pennsylvania State college, who is conducting a large-scale meteorological experiment.

Professor Neuberger is planning to use 1,000 students to estimate the shade of the sky blue. By this experiment, he expects to find out whether the eyes of the average untrained person can be used as a "measuring stick" in this type of meteorological studies.

The aerologist explained that if the large majority of untrained students can agree on the shade of blue during simultaneous observations, the usefulness of color estimations would be established as a meteorological tool.

THAD PHIBBS' house got struck by lightning a couple of nights ago. The kitchen chimney was knocked off and the roof set on fire, and Thad found things pretty lively and exciting for a spell.

The fire was soon out though, thanks to the prompt and efficient work of the local fire department, as the paper says. . . and I never seen a man so grateful as Thad.

Chief Ed Carey was sort of embarrassed, I guess, by the thanks that was being heaped on him.

"That's all right, Mr. Phibbs," he says. "That's all right, sir—that's what you pay taxes for."

From where I sit, I'd say Chief Ed's remark seems to have a lesson in it. . . a lesson on the way that taxes come back in mighty real benefits to the people.

Take the taxes on beer, for instance—more than 2½ billion dollars, I hear, figure federal, state and local, in the nine years since beer's been back.

There was a time—remember—when a lot of that money went into the pockets of bootleggers and blind pigs. But today it's coming right back to the treasuries of the nation, the states and the local communities. . . for the benefit of everybody.

Some goes, for example, to pay for the things Uncle Sam needs to fight the war with. . . for tanks and ships and bombers.

Quite a lot goes for things like public health, and education, and good roads and the like.

And some of it, I surmise, has gone to support the fire company that gave Thad such good service the other night.

To moderate folks, who like a friendly glass of beer now and then, there's a sort of satisfaction in knowing that right now this beverage of moderation is furnishing the public treasuries well over a million dollars every single day.

That's quite a lot of money—especially nowadays when Uncle Sam needs every cent he can get hold of.

REPUBLICANS SET PACE IN CITY VOTING

Early Balloting Indicates Total For Mansfield Won't Be More Than 12,000.

(Continued From Page 1) were expected to cast ballots in the state, about half the vote of two years ago and the smallest since 1920. Others apparently have been too much occupied with the war to become interested in the campaign.

Richland county election board clerks said at noon that the voting was light and orderly. Board headquarters was receiving few complaints from precinct voting places.

Early voters who went to the polling place in a garage at Marion and Bartley avenues found the place closed because there was no heat. The election board ordered the voting booth moved to 66 Bartley avenue. The voting place is in Precinct A of the Second ward.

Mansfield voters received three ballots to mark. Largest of them contained the names of party candidates for state, district, and county offices. The other, a non-partisan ballot, carried the names of candidates for state, district and county judges, while the third had the proposal to eliminate short-term elections for judges.

Ranking in interest with the contests for governor and 17th district congressman in Richland county was the common pleas judge race between Judge C. H. Huston, Democratic incumbent, and Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, Republican. It was the only contest that created widespread discussion during the listless campaign in the county.

For county officers, Mansfield and Richland county voters chose today between Democratic Auditor Norman L. Wolfe and Republican Alden H. Heath for county auditor and County Commissioner C. L. Mitchell, Democrat, and C. L. Shoup of Plymouth, Republican, for commissioner.

State Representative John L. Catlett, Republican, sought re-election with Ralph C. Lutz, Lexington Democrat, as his opponent.

The 17th district congressional race was between Congressman J. Harry McGregor, Coshocton county Republican, and Samuel A. Anderson, Newark Democrat. In the 27th-29th state senatorial district, P. H. Rogers, Lorain county Republican, had no opposition.

Gov. John W. Bricker, Republican nominee for a third term, figured heavily on the rural areas and villages for his vote, while his Democratic opponent, John McSweeney, former congressman from Wooster, counted on the city vote to put him over.

Other Republican candidates for re-election to state offices were Paul H. Herbert, lieutenant governor, and Thomas J. Lutz, state treasurer, and Thomas J. Herbert, attorney general. Also seeking re-election was Secretary of State John Sweeney, a Democrat. Opposing them were George D. Nye for lieutenant governor, Robert S. Cox for state treasurer, and Herbert S. Duffey for attorney general, all Democrats and Edward J. Hummel, Republican, for secretary of state.

One congressman-at-large was to be elected, the state losing one in a re-apportionment. Candidates, both incumbents, were Stephen M. Young, Democrat, and George Bender, Republican.

There were six candidates for the three Ohio supreme court posts and two for Fifth district appeals court judge. Candidates for supreme court were Democrats William C. Dixon, Willis W. Metcalf and Thomas J. Duffy. Charles C. Lerner was the Democratic candidate for re-election to the appeals court.

Republican supreme court judge candidates were Roy H. Williams, Edward C. Turner, and Charles S. Bell, while Robert B. Putnam of absent voter applications from overseas fail to qualify.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Four hundred applications for absent voter ballots most of them from Ohio soldiers of the 145th infantry and 112th headquarters corps, overseas, were received too late to send out ballots. Secretary of State John Sweeney reported today. He said the applications will be turned over to local election boards as a matter of routine.

BRITISH, NAZI TANKS LOCKED IN DESERT WAR

Struggle Near Egyptian Coast Where Eighth Army Trapped 2,500 Axis Soldiers.

They had not completely isolated the Afrika Korps detachment, however. Front reports said German tanks had succeeded in keeping a narrow corridor open, and through that wedge Rommel sent heavy Mark IV tanks to aid the trapped infantrymen.

The Afrika Korps was making sporadic attacks all along the Alamein line, but the imperials were holding the positions they had won in their first surge forward.

In the extreme south, near the Qattara depression end of the narrow, 40-mile fighting front, British infantry attacked yesterday, making an important advance, the communique issued jointly by the British Middle East command and the Royal Air Force, said.

Allied aircraft, with American units bearing a major share of the work, maintained an umbrella of supremacy above the troops and tanks struggling on the western desert sands.

Fighter planes intercepted formations of German dive bombers which attempted unsuccessfully, for the second straight day, to bomb British forward positions. At least five German Junkers-87's were destroyed, the communique said.

ACT TO RAISE COAL SUPPLIES

WASHINGTON—(UPI)—Action has been taken to increase the supply of Ohio coal in order to help meet expanding wartime fuel requirements, according to Director Dan E. Wheeler of the bituminous coal division.

Wheeler said yesterday that, under an order amending minimum price schedules for Ohio, rail-shipped coal produced at strip mines which have no preparation plants may be washed at preparation plants at prices comparable to that of coal produced by deep mines operating in the same seam. This process would increase the use and quality of coal produced in strip mines, Wheeler said.

The building, largest office structure in the world, is located in Arlington county, Va., across the Potomac river from Washington.

Mothers! You'll like the way they are styled and you'll approve of the fine quality corduroy. Each suit consists of a belted coat and long trousers.

You'll like their good looks and their low prices—and the extra warmth they provide around the house, outdoors or at school.

They're sturdy and will take plenty of hard rough wear. Of good, serviceable Corduroy—in brown or grey tweed-like patterns. Sizes 8 to 14.

Some goes, for example, to pay for the things Uncle Sam needs to fight the war with. . . for tanks and ships and bombers.

Quite a lot goes for things like public health, and education, and good roads and the like.

And some of it, I surmise, has gone to support the fire company that gave Thad such good service the other night.

To moderate folks, who like a friendly glass of beer now and then, there's a sort of satisfaction in knowing that right now this beverage of moderation is furnishing the public treasuries well over a million dollars every single day.

That's quite a lot of money—especially nowadays when Uncle Sam needs every cent he can get hold of.

who can be the spokesman and see to it that our diplomacy is in line with our war aims."
Once entrenched in Dakar, Hitler will be hard to take and when we succeed in driving Hitler's Rommel out of western Africa, then we can expect to see the opening of the second front, Irwin said, adding that "Italy is the soft spot through which we can expect the Allied invasion, if Rommel is routed."

Hitler's plan of conquest was not developed from his own brain but came from the published writings of an Englishman, Sir Halford J. McKinder, an Oxford professor, Irwin said. Long in advance of the war, McKinder gave a plan showing how landpower alone overcomes sea power.

"This was all integrated into Nazi theories and it is along McKinder ideas that Hitler is conducting the war. Hitler went into war without a navy. He knew he was confronted by British sea power and Anglo-American sea power. However, he followed McKinder's ideas that Hitler is and seized seaports and naval bases.

Hitler now controls the majority of major naval bases and his plan is to push on until every seaport in Eurasian continent will be his. McKinder said whoever controls eastern Europe, controls the heartland of the world. What McKinder means was eastern Russia and the Balkans. McKinder called this region the greatest source of raw materials in the land. We should see to it that Hitler and the Japs will not be in a position to exploit those vast resources."

Washington came in for criticism from Irwin when he declared "Our government should discontinue the practice of feeding us sugar-coated news about the war." "I'm thinking of the Tokyo raid," he said, "and the impression we were given that all went perfectly. That's what we were told then in order to keep valuable information away from the enemy. Now we are told it was too costly. The enemy not only had the information but they had our planes and our bombs. The real reason we were not told is that the government has to cover up incompetency in various quarters."

Irwin was introduced by Louis J. Ott and his address preceded a short business meeting at which the retailers re-elected Ott, Ray Calene and M. C. Pecht as directors. Pecht is president of the association.

Clarence Henry of the OPA office in Columbus was a guest at the meeting.

Musical entertainment was provided by Mrs. Elsie Ireland playing the novachord.

U. S. POSTS DO BIG BUSINESS

Soldiers In Australia Go There To Purchase Familiar Hems.

(By International News Service)
SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA—Oases of plenty in a land where war has brought shortages of almost every commodity, American post exchanges in Australia are doing a huge trade. Doughboys flock to them for American cigarettes and Coca Cola—which are not procurable elsewhere in Australia—and other goods bearing familiar American brands—including snuff.
One post exchange, under the supervision of Lieutenant Clyde Spinks of Dayton, Ohio, sells 4,000 packs of cigarettes each day, a similar number of both "cokes" and milk drinks each week; serves 750 American style meals and hundreds of hamburgers daily.

Fly sprays and citronella have a big sale at this exchange—fighting equipment for the soldiers' private war against the ever-present Australian mosquito.

A recent shipment of stores from the United States included 20,000 tins of snuff—for chewing.

SIX PERISH

Entire Family Dies As Flames Destroy Home.

OIL CITY, Pa.—(AP)—All six members of the John Huefner family died in their flaming home today near the little village of Fryburg, Clarion county, about 15 mi. from Oil City.

Victims were John Huefner and his wife, and their four children; John, six; Theresa, four; David, three, and a one-year-old baby. An overheated coal stove was blamed for the fire.

U. S., British Chiefs Who Map Allied War Strategy

These high-ranking American and British army, navy and air force officers gather each week in Washington to confer on Allied war strategy. They are, left to right, around the table: Hon. R. D. Coleridge of Great Britain; Rear Admiral W. R. Patterson (representing Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, former commander of the British Mediterranean fleet); Field Marshal Sir John Dill, former British army chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Vivian Dykes, secretary to the British conference; Lieut. Gen. G. N. MacReady, former assistant chief of Imperial British general staff; Air Marshal D. S. C. Evill, senior air officer of the British Royal Air Force in command during the battle of Britain; Lieut. Col. T. W. Hammond, Jr., U. S. A.; Lieut. Gen. T. J. McNary, assistant chief of staff, U. S. A.; Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, U. S. A.; Brig. Gen. J. R. Deane, secretary to the American conference; Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of staff to President Roosevelt; Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, and Vice Admiral S. J. Horn, U. S. N., vice chief of naval operations.

What 'Commandos' Fight For

(Editor's Note: This is the sixth of a series of articles on the agencies participating in funds collected in the Community War Chest campaign in Mansfield and Richland county. Each of the articles will deal with one Community Fund organization at home, and one War Chest agency. A "Commando" army of 500 starts Nov. 9 on its objective of raising $140,377.)

Greek War Relief.

The heroic little country of Greece which fought so valiantly against hopeless odds is to share in the War Chest budget to the amount of $4,026.

Slow extermination faces the Greek people unless help arrives soon since its transportation is gone, its scanty crops wiped out, its few industries paralyzed and its supplies looted.

The Greek War Relief is paying the costs of transport of grain and flour in Swedish boats and diplomatic permits allow for the shipment of 15,000 tons each month for a year. The money raised by the Mansfield and Richland county war chest will make possible this shipment.

Swiss and Swedish Red Cross committees will administer the cargo when it reaches Greece and Americans have the assurance of the International Red Cross that food supplies will reach their proper destination.

Y. W. C. A.

The Young Women's Christian association offers girls ranging in age from eight years to young womanhood the same kind of character building and guidance program that the Y. M. C. A. offers to young men.

One of the prominent agencies embraced by the Community War Chest the Y. W. C. A. is budgeted to receive $6,960 for its work during the fiscal year. Its program furnishes educational and recreational activity for more than 500 girls the majority of whom are of high school age.

The Y. W. C. A. extends its leadership to colored girls in high school and also an advisory mothers' group formed to aid the younger girls' program. Saturday morning classes for eight to 10 year old girls are also open to both white and colored children.

Headquarters twice a week for the young women in war production training at the NYA resident center the Y. W. C. A. building supplies a definite need to these young women who have no other central meeting place in the city.

The local association follows the policy of the national organization in urging better hours and working conditions for employed women and it also joins with the international association in promoting a better understanding between different nationalities.

Two full-time secretaries are employed to carry on the program and 244 volunteer workers lend assistance in various program capacities.

LEARN ABOUT CIVIL SERVICE

Women Voters Hear Address By Atty. George W. Biddle at Monday Meeting.

The workings of the Mansfield Civil Service Commission were outlined before the Richland county League of Women Voters last night by Atty. George W. Biddle, member of the commission, who explained the requirements each applicant must meet to be eligible to the city payroll.

Biddle pointed out that "the methods by which civil service employees are selected are such that political influence does not enter into the case." Further, he added, "civil service is not a scheme by which politicians can be sneaked in through the backdoor."

He explained the efforts made by the commission to keep an eligibility list ready so that vacancies could be quickly filled or additions supplied. He also said that each of the three members on the local commission gives considerable time to investigating the background of the applicant before the latter is given an application blank. Thomas A. Woodard and W. C. Mansfield are the other members of the commission.

Biddle called attention to the fact that Mansfield has 217 persons on the city payroll drawing a monthly salary of $32,674.

His talk was preceded by Miss Lois MacKellar, who traced the development of the civil service system, and it was followed by the report of an interview with Representative John L. Catlett made by Mrs. George Holland. Catlett had pointed out that in his opinion all public officials should not be required to take civil service examinations on the basis that all duties do not require civil service training.

A brief summary of the qualifications of the candidates up for election today were given by Mrs. Russell Moore of the county Re-

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER
MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, NOV. 3, 1942.

The American people are ready and willing to accept whatever measures are necessary for the winning of the war and we will support those measures to the limit.—Thomas E. Dewey.

Tomorrow Will Be 'After Election'

TODAY marks the first general election since United States entry into the war and results in contests for congressmen and senators are expected to reflect public attitude toward the federal administration and toward individual members of lower and upper houses of congress. Whatever may be the outcome in the matter of widely predicted Republican gains, there can be no upsetting of present Democratic control in both house and senate—nor would this be desirable at a time when the utmost in unity of action is essential to greater speed in the national war effort.

Whatever Republican gains there may be will be construed as adverse criticism of administration methods, rather than as opposition to war purposes, and it can at least be hoped that a post-election analysis of public opinion will result in both the legislative and executive branches of government taking a more realistic, and less political attitude on matters either directly or indirectly associated with the main objective of winning the war quickly and with the least possible sacrifice of lives.

For a number of months—ever since Pearl Harbor, in fact—the impression over the country has been that congress has unnecessarily delayed action "until after election," and it is obvious that many things must now be done quickly if this country is to be ready by next year for the kind of war in which it is now engaged.

Uppermost, perhaps, in demanding immediate action, is the unfinished legislation to draft the 18- and 19-year-old group; then steps to increase war production by providing necessary labor where needed and for the number of hours per week that will be required to win the war; then such things as correcting the "silver steal," and other politically inspired sops to minority groups.

Tomorrow will be "after election"—and will be none too soon to start the ball rolling toward victory by shelving politics until the war has been won.

Other Cities Fill Their Chests

SOME other cities have already completed their war chest and community fund campaigns—and reports have invariably been "over the top," by a nice margin.

War-time giving is notably speedier and freer than when peacetime conditions exist—which accounts for the uniform success of chest drives to date.

Mansfield and Richland county people are being made conscious this week that the local Community War Chest campaign is to be started next Monday, with $140,277 as the goal for city and county.

Plans call for a quick-action campaign, so that workers can get back to other tasks, and there is no apparent reason why the allotted three days shouldn't be plenty long enough to devote to this particular effort—there being so many things to be done and such limited time in which to do them.

War of Movement Is Revived

THE PRESENT WAR, with all its innovations like dive-bombers and flying tanks, is conservative in one respect. It has reverted to the old-time war of movement. Whether a soldier rides a horse or a tank is a detail. In either case he is a mounted soldier. Even if his horse is mechanical, he is essentially either a cavalryman or a mounted infantryman—professionals distinguish between the two—and can be moved considerable distance.

The first World War with its trenches was quite the opposite. From Switzerland to the North sea was one continuous siege. Movement on any large scale was impossible, and strategy was almost non-existent.

That was the trouble with the French army in 1940. It was trained in the school of 1914-18 and its stationary warfare. The Maginot Line was a system of fortified super-trenches. Apparently the possibility never occurred to them that means might be found to break through this system and return to the old days of open warfare.

The Germans found such means, and skill in handling large masses of troops is once more at a premium. Napoleon would have found some of the modern military inventions strange, but he would have understood this war.

Women as Taxicab Drivers

WOMEN, taking over many kinds of civilian work as men are being absorbed by factories and inducted into military service, finally get around to driving taxicabs. In city after city they are moving into this unusual employment. This has been done in other countries as shortages in man-power developed. Women have driven army busses, too, in Canada and elsewhere. And there seems to be no logical reason why it shouldn't be done in this country, under proper regulations.

Current restrictions in Ohio forbid such employment after 10:30 p. m., place a 48-hour limit on the working week, and insist on proper provision for women drivers at taxicab garages. With such legal protection, women with enough self confidence to take up this virile employment can probably take care of themselves. There is something about essential war-time jobs that lifts common occupations above ordinary levels.

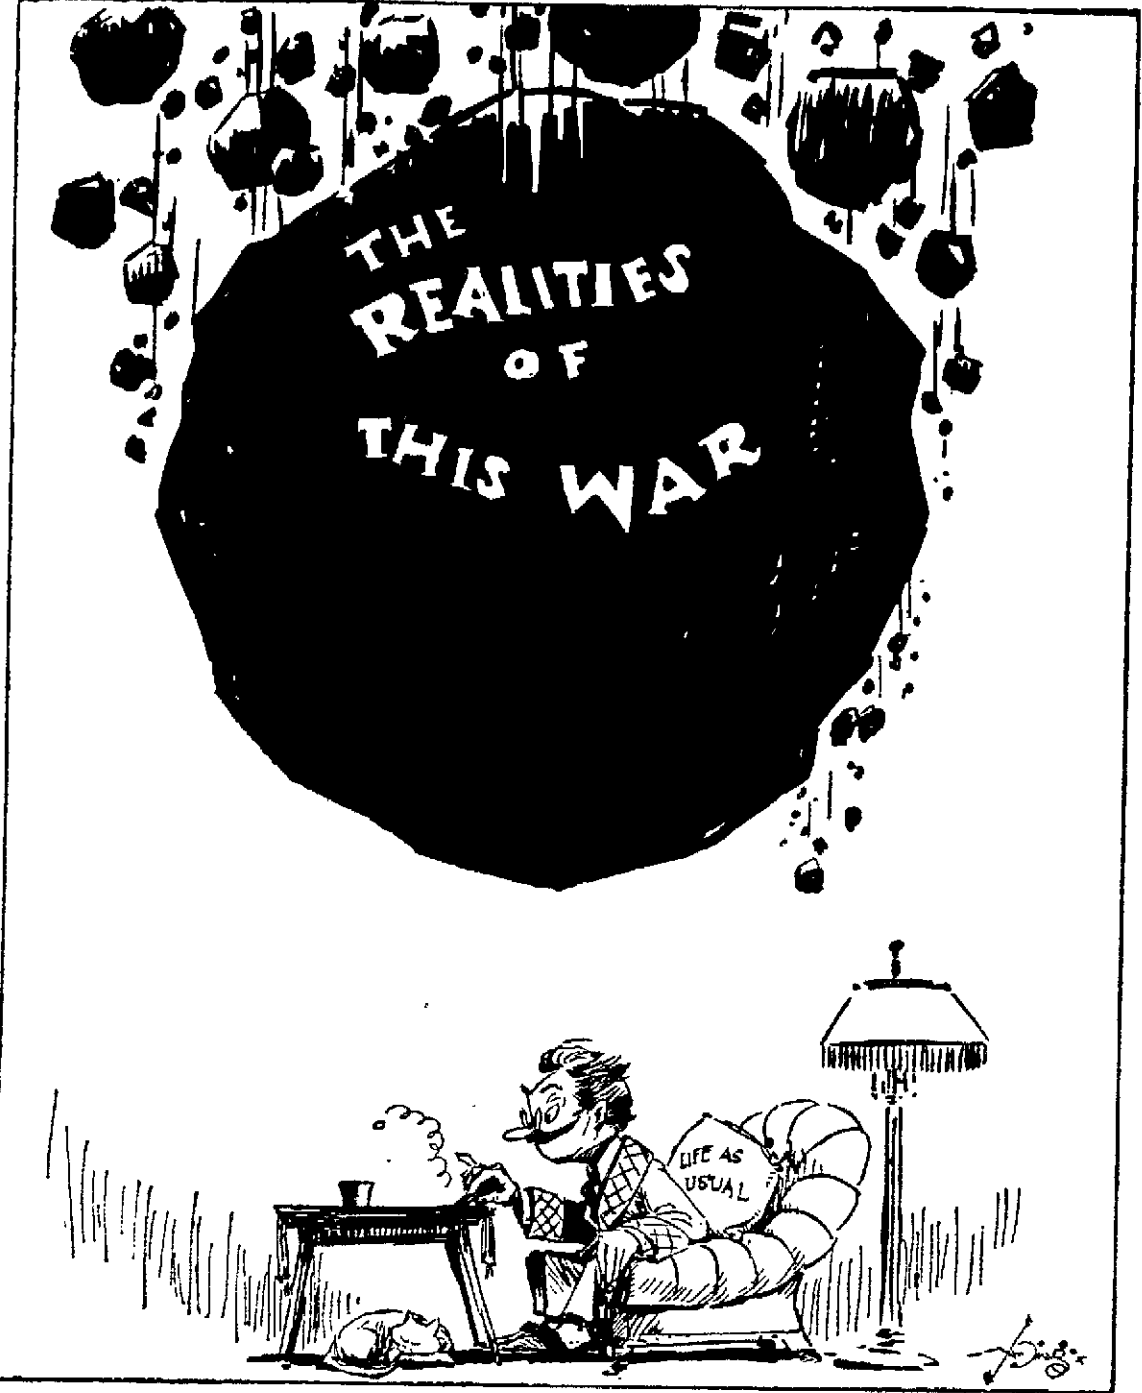

Calm In the Midst of Turmoil

DURING times like these," asks Rev. Horace F. Westwood of Somerville, Mass., "when fear seems to possess the heart of the world and civilization trembles on the brink of disaster, what can the individual do to restore that confidence which is the first condition of peace and world-wide security?"

"It seems to me that the most important contribution any one of us can make is to maintain our emotional stability. In these troubled days the most useful persons are those who keep sane; who, in the midst of almost universal fear and hysteria, remain collected and calm. Mistrust and suspicion, like cruelty and hatred, are contagious. But so are confidence and courage. Every person who in the midst of threatened disaster can stand firm, becomes a tower of strength to others."

Uncle Sam needs more scrap to beat the Jap.

THE TIDDLY-WINKS PLAYER

Fortune-Telling Racket Thrives

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Except the government's wartime and related activities, fortune-telling in its various forms, is about the biggest single business in Washington.

It ranges all the way up from the merely superstitious forms of it to something verging on a regular science, whose practitioners take themselves seriously and probably give a certain amount of genuinely good advice in return for the fees they charge.

The capital always has gone in considerably for occultism in its various manifestations. In the very nature of the place, an exceptionally large proportion of its inhabitants and out-of-town visitors in their midst have a lot of intricate problems to puzzle 'em. The local authorities, too, don't treat the wizards and witches as fakirs and vags, as many cities do, but licenses them into a certain sort of official recognition.

And, dating from the beginning of Uncle Sam's war participation, suitable customers for the necromantic profession have swarmed into town at a rate tremendously to stimulate the industry. Girl secretaries, for instance, are very susceptible, and the rapidly increasing demand for the classes of information such gals are desirous of has created the swiftly developing supply of it.

Politicians, too. I'm not so sure that there aren't quite a few hard-boiled politicians, who ordinarily wouldn't be suspected of the least faith in transcendental suggestions, who don't Listen World!

Why You're Fighting

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

DEAR YOUNGSTER, somewhere on the fighting line: I'm looking at a mountain of letters. They've been piling in for weeks. You'd know the handwriting on some of these letters for, without exception, they're from your mothers and sweethearts and young wives. And they all ask the same question: "Won't I, who am a trained writer, please tell you what you mean to us who wait back home. They'd like to, but they haven't the words. Won't I try?"

Yes, I'll try. But I warn you, I'm not a "trained writer." Not for such a horror as we're facing now. Maybe, though, I can send you a little of the homeland you've left since I've farmed and ranched and mined and kept house in nearly every corner of it. And perhaps, because of that, I can feel what's in your heart, the loneliness and doubt, the fear and despair and hope.

It's the last day of October as I write, on a ranch near in California's Sierra. But October's about the same wherever you are in America. Remember the early morning, with the shadows lying blue as spilled ink over the fields and trails and the morning air tingling sharp as clear, crushed ice? Hardly a sound in the forest, clearing or the city street. Somewhere a jay squawking, a cowbell clanging, the bark of a motor tuning up. But above the cabin, or out of the "short order" doors, the smell of bacon and coffee and flapjacks.

Then, while you're piling into it, the warmth of the sun comes spreading down the darkened alleys, along the waterfront, over the elms and poplars, the locusts and oaks that line the barnyard. Sunshine shooting like flame up the poplars, turning even the grimmest pavement coral bright. And the sounds and smells of life beginning in city and country alike . . . roosters, hens, ducks, lowing cows, milling crowds. The night shift coming off, the day shift coming on. Your kid brother pouring the milk and scraps into the old sow's trough. Or the gang rounding up their horses for the day's job, their leather chaps flapping round bowed legs, their high heels clacking over the barnyard, the steam rising from their horses' backs. Dogs yapping, rarin' to go.

City or country, it's the same—October morning, with that special feeling only October has. Pumpkins sprawled through the withered cornfields. Apples piled in russet and crimson heaps in the old orchard. Smell of "pickling spice" drifting out on the kitchen smoke.

Everywhere, October. With the full, fat, easy peace that means October. It's hard for you to realize that, lad. You're so far away. There's only a nameless ache where there used to be a surging joy. You feel so out of it, as if you didn't count. As if you didn't belong where you are. But get this straight, kid—whether you're 20 or 45—You are where you belong. And all this warm, fragrant, peaceful October morning wouldn't have a chance unless you were there.

FOR THIS IS WHAT YOU ARE PROTECTING . . . THIS IS WHAT YOU ARE FIGHTING FOR! "Freedom," that's a swell word. But it's too vague. These are the things which lie behind freedom, which lie behind the national union. These are the things you're fighting for . . . which are clinging to you, desperately, for protection.

A man doesn't give his life for an abstract phrase like "Liberty," however noble it may seem. But he'll give his life with fire and fury for the new-born babe he's never seen, somewhere in a mountain cabin, a city apartment or a prairie shack. A man doesn't face a bayonet for a theory called "equality." But he'll face it and strangle the man behind it for the memory of a friendly street he once loved . . . the live oaks of Louisiana . . . the elms of Vermont . . . the mandarin flowering in a California patio . . . the bright lights of New York.

THAT'S WHAT YOU ARE FIGHTING FOR, KID—WHETHER YOU ARE 20 OR 45. THAT'S WHAT WE ARE EXPECTING YOU TO FIGHT FOR. IT ISN'T EASY ANYWHERE TODAY. THERE AREN'T ANY "HIRED HANDS" ANY MORE. EVERYONE ON THE OLD FARM . . . IN THE CITY "SHOPPE" . . . IS TOTTING A BACKACHE BECAUSE YOU'VE GONE TO WAR. BUT WE'LL BE GLAD TO TOTE IT IF YOU'LL ONLY FEEL PROUD AND GRATEFUL—FULL OF HELI BECAUSE—THIS IS WHAT YOU'RE FIGHTING FOR. THIS FREEDOM. THIS ABUNDANCE. THIS PEACE. THIS AMERICA! God bless you lad. I know it's tough. But keep going! ELSIE.

Interpreting the War News

Turkey Awake to Grave Danger Of Axis Attack, Inonu Reveals

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

LONDON—The grave declaration by President Ismet Inonu of Turkey that his country is nearer war than at any time since the world conflict started—from a cause he does not specify—may be taken as a warning to his people of the danger of an Axis attack and a notification to Hitler that the Turks are not asleep.

What the astute Inonu has in mind seems clear. Long ago I called attention to the likelihood that if Hitler were frustrated in his interlocking Caucasus and Egyptian campaigns, he likely would try to reach the Middle East either by attacking Turkey or through bypassing Turkey and making an assault on Syria with air and water-borne forces.

Well, frustration appears to be riding the Fuehrer's shoulders like the old man of the sea. Undoubtedly he will make further desperate efforts to crack this Middle East spot, for it represents his only hope of winning the war.

That certainly puts Turkey on the hot spot.

Of course, Turkey might have her choice of joining the Axis or the Allies, but ever since the war began all indications have been that if she had to abandon neutrality she would fight for the United Nations. That is the reason Hitler has been so careful not to antagonize the Turks.

Naturally it is problematical whether the Nazi leader could make such an attack in view of the terrific jam he is in on the Russian front. However, presumably Inonu sees signs which point to trouble.

If the Germans do attempt such an adventure it would mean that they would perform a holding operation on the Caucasus battlefront while flinging the army either at Syria or directly at Turkey.

The Nazi chief's great difficulty in attacking Syria would be to master sufficient air strength. He is short of warplanes, short of pilots and short of both gasoline and oil, according to my information from a reliable source.

Moreover, he presumably will strain every nerve to send air support to Rommel in Egypt.

Still, the German mind plans a long way ahead and it wouldn't be surprising to see the development which Inonu apparently has in mind as a possibility.

The statement would seem at once to be a declaration of Turkish policy and a prediction that the Axis cannot win the war.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — The try-out period for women in uniform in the U. S. armed forces is over. The ladies have made good.

It hasn't been announced yet but a big expansion of the uniformed women corps in the army, navy and other forces is in the immediate offing. The WAACs and WAVES soon will be shooting at a total enrollment of 150,000 members each. Present laws place limitations on the numbers in both of these services but, according to rumor, that limitation soon will be removed. Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers, who introduced the original WAACs bill, has another coming up which would make the WAACs an integral part of the Army instead of a mere auxiliary.

Another Fort Des Moines (WAAC training center) may rise soon at Daytona Beach, Fla. The previously announced second training school for WAVES at Mount Holyoke College, Mass., probably is the forerunner of additional centers in Iowa and Georgia.

The bill establishing the "War-coops" (Women's Auxiliary of the Coast Guard) already has cleared the House of Representatives. The "WAFs," under the direction of Nancy Harkness Love, is a small force but growing fast. These women in the auxiliary flying service will never catch up numerically with the WAACs and WAVES, but proportionately they have a vital spot in the military scheme of things.

There's a great deal of mystery surrounding Jacqueline Cochran's army training school for women pilots, but it is known that she is drawing heavily on the ranks of 3,400 women pilots in the country and training others, without previous experience, to produce a corps of women flyers capable of piloting anything from an airborne "jeep" to a trans-oceanic clipper.

The greatest strides so far have been made by the WAACs. In one small office here, 13 WAACs have taken over work previously done by soldiers capable of serving the front lines. These aren't mere stenographic and clerical jobs ordinarily handled by civil service workers.

The army has made no announcement at this writing as to whether WAACs are serving overseas, but there are rumors that the uniforms are not uncommon in England.

The Navy has been rather reticent to hand its work over to the WAVES. WAVES assigned to jobs in Washington are still "shadows" of the naval officers they are supposed to supersede.

When our armed forces reach that prospective level of seven or eight million men, the women in uniform may total 10 per cent of that.

Looking Back

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Twenty years ago today, Friday, Nov. 3, 1922. Rev. Martin Wappner was ordained as minister at a meeting of the Lutheran Synod of Ohio, held in Bucyrus.

Mrs. Margaret Ozier, 90, former Mansfield resident, died at the home of her son, Fred S. Ozier, in Akron.

Albert Boals and John Miller were injured when buggy in which they were riding was struck by automobile.

James Hoppe became manager of the piano department of the Charles M. Zitzer store.

Glenn Erdemberger and Miss Esther Wood were in Cleveland attending convention of editors and business managers of school papers.

Arthur Courtney recalled that just twenty years earlier he came in from Washington township to become deputy county auditor under George H. Weidner.

Miss Hermine Michael returned to Mansfield after several months visit with her parents in Germany.

TODAY IN HISTORY William Cullen Bryant, poet and journalist, was born at Cummington, a farming village in the Hampshire hills of western Massachusetts, on this date, 1794. A man of retiring nature, Bryant was a counsellor rather than a leader. His gift for language made him a frequent translator. His rendering of Homer is considered most valuable.

Health and Diet

Keeping Mentally Fit for Emergencies.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

KEEPING fit under any circumstances involves three somewhat separate but interrelated activities; the mind, the nutrition and the muscles. It would be hard to say which is most important; this depends on just what you are expecting your body to do.

If training for an athletic contest, muscular hygiene is primary. Starting out on any kind of stint of work, nutrition and good muscles and circulation contribute to the balance of the mind.

In such terrific emergencies as we are living through now, I am inclined to think mental hygiene takes first place.

I do not believe public officials, newspapers, magazines, radio announcers, feature and editorial writers always realize the effect of what they are saying and announcing on ordinary minds—and that includes the majority of us. Nor especially, the effect on minds that are not quite stable.

Effect on Minds. Even the most vigorous and courageous and optimistic minds are staggered at times by what is going on around us. How must the impact of these events affect those who were never designed for great responsibility or intensive thinking.

An editorial writer or a responsible statesman has talked over his message with colleagues who are as stable, penetrating and judicious as himself. He often has not thought or has no conception of how that message will affect a less balanced personality.

I am not suggesting that the editorials or the pronouncements, cease, but that many of us should not read or listen.

I see it about me all the time, and it is increasing. I know a man who operates well in a steady, small job—small but necessary. He is about 50 years old, but his intellect is that of a child of 10.

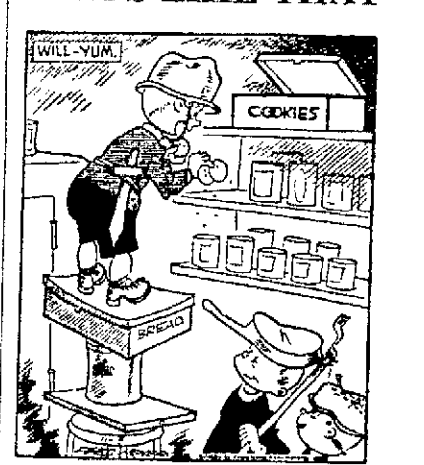

Turn on a radio all the time. He is a war news, morning to night. And his mental equipment is such that his efficiency in his job has fallen, about 75 per cent.

Cut Down on War News. I don't believe anybody can stand more than one newscast a day. Nor more than one political commentator. You don't have to read all of them, you know. If this routine disturbs you, go back to Dickens and Dumas and Mark Twain and see what they said.

A neurologist in an Eastern city told me that after the bombing of Cologne his office was filled with jittery people, some of whom had not been there for years.

Give up the war news entirely if you have to. Read Clendening's column. I always soothe you down. Sometimes I put you to sleep.

THEATERS

Thrilling Story.

Five R. A. F. fliers who accomplish their bombing objectives in Germany and then are shot down on the return trip home furnish plenty of action in "Desperate Journey," the Ohio attraction. Headed by Errol Flynn, the cast includes Alan Hale, Arthur Kennedy, Ronald Sinclair and Ronald Reagan as brother fliers, while Nancy Coleman has the role of an anti-Nazi in Germany who aids the airmen's cause. The fight across Germany by foot and rail with the Gestapo on all sides provides one thrilling sequence after another. Raymond Massey has the part of a Nazi intelligence officer.

Career Comedy.

"My Sister Eileen" returns to the Madison today for a two-day showing after bowing out yesterday in favor of a stage attraction. The hilarious story of two sisters from Columbus, O., whose Greenwich Village apartment becomes the happy hunting ground of every wolf on Broadway when they go to New York to seek fame and fortune, comes from the pen of Ohlan Ruth McKenney, who attended high school in Cleveland and worked on newspapers in Columbus and Akron. Rosalind Russell and Janet Blair top the cast which includes Brian Aherne, George Tobias and Allyn Joslyn. "Sin Town" with Constance Bennett is the co-feature.

Enemy Plot.

In the role of an undercover agent for Uncle Sam's secret service, John Shelton taps the source of a nation-wide fifth column movement in "Foreign Agent," the Ritz attraction. A spy ring bent on destroying all essential service in Los Angeles through sabotage at a given signal furnishes the menace. Kenneth Harlan, one of the silent screen's popular actors, appears in the cast with Gale Storm. Dorothy Lamour and Richard Denning are teamed in the co-feature, "Beyond the Blue Horizon," in which Miss Lamour plays a jungle beauty.

College Musical.

How a fun-loving college crowd inspired a stern young professor to kick over the traces and have some fun himself is depicted in "Youth on Parade," the Park attraction. John Hubbard plays the professor and the cast includes Ruth Terry and Martha O'Driscoll. A singing and dancing chorus is featured in the production. George Murphy and Anne Shirley appear in the second feature, "The Mayor of 44th Street."

PAY IN COOKIES

BOSTON—(INS)—"Cookies for Rookies" is the latest contribution from the home front to the boys in the armed services. Rallies are being held with two dozen cookies as the price of admission. At the meetings housewives are asked to pledge weekly donations of cookies to be relayed to service camps.

REDUCE CAR STOPS

CINCINNATI—(INS)—Street car stops numbering 155 have been eliminated in Cincinnati in co-operation with the office of defense transportation. Distances between stops have been lengthened to an average of 807 feet from 551 feet. A reduction of bus stops is to be undertaken next.

College Professor Predicts Heavy Rains, It Rains.

BOWLING GREEN —(AP)— Excessive rain during the past summer bore out a forecast made three years ago by Prof. Edwin L. Moseley after a study of tree ring widths.

The Professor Emeritus of Biology at Bowling Green State university predicted 1942's weather in an address at the annual meeting of the Ohio Academy of Science, and predicted further that the 12-month period ending last May would be less dry than usual. This too was accurate.

Moseley contends that rainfall in a given area follows a cycle of 90.4 years—four times the magnetic sunspot cycle. From ring widths on stumps of trees Ohio and nearby states have gathered a rainfall data going back more than 300 years.

He is believed the only scientist who foresaw the drought in New York state in 1939, and newspapers commented then upon the accuracy of his forecast.

The bowie or hunting-knife gets its name from the Texas frontiersman, James Bowie, one of the Alamo's defenders.

LIMIT ENTRIES TO MART SHOW

CHICAGO—(INS)—Officials preparing the Chicago Market show, to be held Dec. 2-5, have ruled that only entries destined for market will be shown to eliminate the necessity of a double haul on the nation's war-taxed transportation facilities.

The market show will be held this year to supplant the customary International Livestock exposition which was cancelled because of transportation difficulties.

DELAY ACTION ON PLEA FOR PAY INCREASE

Shelby Council Tells Fire Chief More Time Needed To Study Request.

SHELBY—A plea by Fire Chief Eugene Schull for wage increases for the firemen here was tabled by city council Monday night during its regular semi-monthly session at the city hall.

City officials pointed out that they wanted to study the matter before making any decision, especially in view of the recent federal wage law ruling which froze all wages. Law Director Frank Long told the council that he was not sure whether the raise could be made or not under the ruling.

The council passed a resolution authorizing the transfer of $500 from the general fund to the park board fund after it was disclosed the park board would be short of funds due to a new federal tax.

Roy Van Wagner and Clayton Mayer, members of the park board, were present at the session to explain the need of additional funds for the park over the $2,000 appropriated at the beginning of the year.

SHELBY—District Three of the air raid warden group has named its personnel to conduct a survey of its area in the northwest section of the city, civilian defense officials disclosed today.

Named as air raid wardens in that district are: Arthur Love, senior warden; Elton Karr, Ralph Tindale, J. E. Emmer, Fred Anderson, Leo E. Emmer, Carl Berk, John Plank, William Broerick, Harold Crum, Leonard Waines, Joe Snyder and George Kilgus.

Other districts in the city are being organized by their district air raid wardens.

Pastor Asks For Chicken Gizzards, Gets Big Supply

TIRO—Rev. T. W. Bennett of the Tiro U. B. church now knows that Tiro community chickens have gizzards.

He was bitterly disappointed when no chicken gizzards were served recently at a church chicken supper and spoke about the "sin" of withholding gizzards from church dinners, even preaching about the subject in church and threatening to search the scriptures for a text unless the people repented.

Knowing that chicken would be served at the annual church homecoming Sunday, Rev. Bennett suggested he be named chairman of a gizzard committee.

An aroused church membership took action and served an avalanche of chicken gizzards. Even with the help of the speaker of the afternoon, Rev. J. H. Patterson of Ocoola, another ministerial chicken eater, Rev. Bennett was compelled to leave at least one gizzard for the cooks.

SECOND FRONT WILL BE OPENED NEXT SPRING, WEISMAN PREDICTS

NEW LONDON—A second front in Europe will be opened in the spring of 1943 and will come from the Mediterranean area, Russell A. Weisman, associated editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer and professor of economics at Western Reserve university, said yesterday in a talk at a luncheon meeting of the New London Rotary club.

He based his statement about the new second front on the belief that the great Allied offensive now under way in Africa is intended to drive the Axis out of that region this winter. That would open the way for sending materials for a spring offensive through Italy or the Balkan states, he predicted.

"The United States," declared Weisman, "has needed a year in which to get rolling. Starting actually from scratch, on top of the which we suffered heavy losses at Pearl Harbor, we have had a terrific task to face, and now we are beginning to go places. A few more months should see real action from our armed forces, wherever they may be."

When asked if Japan would continue to be a major threat of the war, Weisman agreed, and stated that the only way Japan could be stopped would be to completely subjugate Germany on the continent, then turn round and give Japan a sound beating. He said this could be done, and predicted that 1943 would see this action well under way.

Weisman is convinced, he said, that Germany's three major objectives—to capture Stalingrad, to split North and South Russia, and to capture the Caucasus oil fields—have failed for this year at least, and perhaps altogether.

"If this is actually the case," Weisman said, "and movements of this winter prove it, then the next spring's offensive campaign for the Allies will be just that much easier."

Thirty-five were present at Monday's luncheon, including 17 visitors.

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, with Ease for Stomach, too

When constipation brings on discomfort after meals, stomach upset, bloating, dizziness, gas, coated tongue, and bad breath, your stomach is probably "craving the laxative" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those lary bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin for perfect ease to your stomach in taking. For years, many doctors have given Laxative-Senna more agreeable to a touchy stomach. So be sure your Laxative-Senna Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative-Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully the Laxative-Senna wakes up lazy nerves and mixes in your intestines to bring welcome relief from constipation. And the good old Syrup Pepsin makes this Laxative-Senna so comfortable and easy on your stomach. Laxative-Senna children love the taste of this pleasant family Laxative. Lake Dr. Caldwell's Laxative-Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin, as directed on label or as your doctor advises, and you'll be better. Get genuine Dr. Caldwell's.

"WAR IS FOUGHT IN THE HOMES TOO," SAYS SECRETARY MORGENTHAU

Family budgeting urged by two government departments—Here's a simple plan to help you

"This war is not fought by armies and navies alone," recently said Secretary of the Treasury, Henry Morgenthau, Jr. "It is fought too in the homes. Every time you forego unnecessary spending you help to win the war. We must cut our budgets drastically to conserve materials needed for the war. We have got to discipline ourselves to do without things we do not actually need, and to put our earnings into War Bonds instead so that we can help our country in this war for survival and for freedom."

How the plan can help you

In this war so much depends on how we spend our money. To do its duty every family needs a financial plan. So the Government has published a simple budget method for you to use in planning your spending.

This budget plan will help you stretch your pay checks over War Bonds, contributions to USO and the Red Cross old debts, higher taxes and increased living expenses. It's a thoroughly practical plan based upon the experience of folks with money problems just like your own. Many families have already tested the plan. They are very enthusiastic about it. The plan should be helpful to thousands of other families. That's why

5 SCHOOL WELLS CONDEMNED IN HOLMES COUNTY

Health Officials Recommend Improvements To Protect Water Supply.

MILLERSBURG—Five school wells in Holmes county have been condemned according to a report of S. N. Stringe, state sanitary engineer and Dr. A. J. Earney, Holmes county health commissioner.

Samples of water were taken from 41 rural schools and examined Oct. 6 by the state health department. Water supplies of nine schools were polluted, seven contaminated and the remaining 25 were pronounced safe. Eight wells are to be improved.

Recommendations made by Stringe include: mounding the earth about the wells to take away surface drainage; placing a large cement slab on top of mound; extending new steel casing two inches above the cement slab in order that the casing will be fit firmly into the pump base; have a drain in the cement slab; installing a new pump; anchoring of pump base firmly to cement slab and removal of toilets 200 to 300 feet from well and on a lower level than the well.

The importance of each school having its own well was stressed.

Supt. W. W. Wilson announced that the Millersburg school pupils sold $85.70 in defense stamps during the past week. The grades sold $70.65 worth and the high school, $15.05. The room taught by Mrs. Karl Snyder purchased the most, $22.80 worth.

SOLDIER WEDS

SHELBY—Announcement today had been made here of the wedding of Miss Eileen Narance, daughter of Mrs. Louise Narance of Marion, to Robert E. Hilborn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hilborn of Shelby.

The ceremony took place on April 11, 1942, at Napoleon, O. Attending the couple were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Emmer of Shelby.

The bride, a graduate of Harding high school at Marion in 1936, is employed in the traffic department of the Ohio Associated Telephone company at Marion. Hilborn, who attended the Shelby schools, is stationed with the air corps band at Hartington, Tex. Before joining the armed services, he was employed at the Ohio Seamless Tube company in Shelby.

CHAPTER VI

Four months passed, four months of incredibly hard work. As an extra for Johnny Einfeld, Livia made an average of $30 a week. It was the first money she had earned, and she was proud and exultant when the cashier at the studio handed her her first check.

At the beginning, Mrs. Clarkson seemed to wait for something horrible to happen, but as the days passed into weeks and into months, and the expected catastrophe did not materialize, the apprehension in her eyes diminished.

Livia discovered that if she were to keep her place in the extra ranks, she must spend most of her earnings on clothes. But she learned from the other extras where to buy them cheaply. They were a strangely assorted crowd—the men and women with whom she toiled—a sprinkling of once-famous stars, now down on their luck and glad to make the $850 or $1130 they earned a day, a one-time famous producer, society girls bored with the monotonous round of the debutante.

But the majority of the extras were men and women who might have been stenographers or clerks if they had lived in any other city. It was a business for them, an unglamorous business that yielded them just enough on which to live—if they lived parsimoniously.

They were not very ambitious. The limit of their horizon was a line to speak, which would jump their pay check to $25. In between scenes, they sat around on the set playing bridge, gossiping or sleeping. Their general meekness appalled Livia, and she tried to hold aloof from them lest she should be drawn into their acceptance of mediocrity.

They were making a picture about the French Revolution. Every day for week, Livia had worn the heavy dresses of the aristocrats of the period. It was five in the afternoon. And Livia was standing wearily outside the sound stage, in the cool breeze of the dying December day.

All day long she had been aware of the calculating scrutiny of an unprepossessing extra. One side of his face was scarred. His tired, bloodshot eyes were puckered, dark circles showed through the smears of make-up. Livia noticed his hands shook when he lit a cigarette.

"Who is he?" she asked one of the extra men.

"You mean who was he? You'd never think to look at him that Earl Dixon was once one of the biggest directors in the business."

"What happened?"

"The extra made a motion with his arm to indicate drinking."

"And I believe there was some scandal!"

"Well I wish he wouldn't stare at me all the time," said Livia petulantly.

"She was hot and tired, but she'd have to go inside to avoid him. The one-time director forestalled her."

"You're the girl who won the 'Charm' competition?" he asked huskily.

"Yes." She started to move away. But his voice detained her.

"And you and your mama lived in a big house on a hill?" There was a sneer on his face.

"What's that to you?" Livia wished Bruce were here. Had he known how to deal with this revolting person?

"I used to live there myself—that's what it is to me." His liquor-laden breath made Livia suddenly feel ill.

"Maybe . . . If I were directing this scene, he said cynically, 'you'd fling your arms around my neck.' Livia edged away."

"And you'd say, 'Why, Daddy, I recognized you right away!'"

It was a nightmare brought on by overwork. She would wake up soon. But until then she must deal carefully with this maniac who said he was her father. She was rescued by the assistant director shouting:

"Everyone back to the set!" His harsh, grating command was never more welcome to Livia. She turned swiftly and went inside, but Earl Dixon followed her.

"I really am your father whether you like it or not," he said. "Don't look so miserable about it. I'm not going to hurt you."

"You couldn't," said Livia coldly. She still didn't believe him. She thought of the photograph in her mother's album. Was there any relationship between that handsome, challenging face and this human wreck? No, of course not.

"When this is over," he whispered, "I want to talk to you some more. Meet me at the gate."

Dixon went to his appointed place in the line. He was one of the dissipated courtiers at King Louis' court. Livia tried to forget him, but in spite of herself, her eyes continued to seek him during the long weary preparation for the scene.

During the first "take" she performed her part mechanically. In the second she walked in the wrong direction, and the extras near her tittered.

"Where d'ye think you're going?" shouted the assistant director. Her cheeks reddened, and again she sought the eyes of Earl Dixon. He looked mockingly at her. For a fleeting second she saw the man in her mother's album. Incredible as it seemed, Earl Dixon was her father. That smirking, dissipated courtier was her father. Did her mother know he was alive and in Hollywood as an extra? The hot air on the sound stage stifled her, and she tried to loosen her tight waistline.

"Sure she knows I'm alive," Dixon told her when they were sitting at a narrow table in the "Melrose Grotto." Dixon ordered himself another highball. "So she told you I was dead? Well, why not? It was the best way out for Joan. She never had much imagination. And as for facing an ugly unpleasant—did you ever get in a jam and expect sympathy from her? And I did pretty well by her," his voice rose on an aggrieved note, "when I had it, that is."

"Does she know you're in Los Angeles?" Livia tried to conceal her aversion.

"For heaven's sake, don't tell Joan I'm here. I don't want to see her and she doesn't want to see me. No, I wouldn't have said anything to you either, but you looked so pretty. And—" He paused, then grinned. "You are my daughter. I wondered what sort of kid you were." He looked at her face and figure critically. "I could do a lot for you—if this were 1921." He called for another drink. As Livia stood up he said, "No, don't go yet."

Livia had promised to dine with Bruce. He must be wondering why she was late. But she sat down again. This was Dixon's fourth highball, and she was afraid of what he might do if she started to leave him. How brave her mother had been. She could have shared the burden of her husband's disgrace with his daughters. But she had preferred to bear it alone. This was why her mother had so strongly opposed her desire for a screen career. Livia's eyes filled with tears. "Oh, mother, I'll do anything you want," she said to herself. "I'll give up the movies. I'll join you and Vera in the kitchen. I'll do anything you want me to."

Now she addressed the man: "No, I won't tell mother about seeing you. It will be a little secret between us." She attempted a smile.

"That's the girl! You and I will get on fine . . . Sure you won't have a drink?"

"Yes, of course, I will to celebrate our reunion." Livia's voice broke.

"There, there," he patted her hand. "Waiter, another drink for my—my friend." He winked broadly at Livia.

After his seventh drink he fell asleep at the table. Livia got up softly and paid the bill. It took all her money for that day's work. She wrote a note, "See you on the set tomorrow," put it on the plate in front of her father, and walked slowly to Bruce's bungalow.

It was late when she got there, and she was not surprised to find Bruce waiting for her at the end of the street.

"I'm sorry," she began. But he cut her short and took her arm.

"Your mother has had an accident—" He opened the door of a waiting taxi. "We're going to the hospital."

While they were driving there, Bruce told her that Vera had called an hour ago, thinking Livia was with him.

"How badly injured is my mother?" Livia asked Bruce, trying to control her voice.

"Vera didn't know."

He didn't ask her where she had been and why she was late. Should she tell him about her father? Bruce would know how to deal with him.

"Ever hear of a man called Earl Dixon?" she asked Bruce, glanced at her with faint surprise.

"Yes," he said—and waited for her next remark. But Livia was suddenly ashamed to admit her relationship. Bruce would surely have nothing to do with her if he knew that Dixon was her father.

They reached the hospital, and Livia ran inside while Bruce paid the taxi-driver. Vera was outside her mother's room. She had been weeping. She clung to Livia and told her their mother was struck by an automobile. It wasn't the driver's fault. He was now in the corridor, a boy of 20 Mrs. Clarkson had stepped into the roadway with her back to oncoming traffic.

"I tried to pull up in time, but —the boy's voice trembled and his eyes begged forgiveness. Mrs. Clarkson was unconscious. Her leg had been crushed. And there were injuries to her back. The doctor's face was solemn.

"We ought to operate, but—" He lifted his shoulders helplessly. Then Bruce arrived. He had a private talk with the doctor. He told Livia and Vera.

"It's her only chance—an operation, but her leg—"

ICELAND HIT BY INFLATION, PRICES SOAR

Cost of Living Goes To 207 Per Cent of 1939 Figure; Wages High, Too.

By JAMES EARL ROPER (United Press Staff Correspondent)

REYKJAVIK, Iceland — (UP) — The soaring cost of living in inflation-struck Iceland today reached a point more than double the pre-war level.

With the cost of living now standing at 207 per cent of the 1939 figures, members of the controlling independence (conservative) party predicted it would reach about 232 by the end of October.

Business as well as government circles believed the runaway race between wages and prices would continue. Parliament recently repealed an important part of Iceland's anti-inflation regulations.

The law had prohibited strikes for pay any higher than that justified by the officially published cost of living index. Under the law, the present index of 207 would have justified wages slightly more than twice as high as in 1939—and no higher, except for an authorized bonus of 25 or 30 per cent.

Iceland's greatly increased buying power, together with a scarcity of goods, has led to higher prices, which in turn may lead to even bigger wages—the deadly inflation cycle which the United States tried to stop through the fixing of prices.

Although the inflation so far is compared to what may come, it already is squeezing foreigners who must exchange hard-earned pounds or dollars for the Icelandic kronur.

Butter $1.31 a Pound.

In this country which produces a considerable amount of dairy products, butter sells wholesale at $1.31 a pound and cheese at 77 cents a pound. Milk is 23 cents a quart, and eggs are 15 cents each. Tomatoes grown in hot houses—the only ones available—are 75 cents a pound. In all, the index of food prices is 248 per cent of the 1939 level.

Prices on imported articles follow the same line. A street dress which would cost about $10 in the United States sells for $45 in Reykjavik. A good American fountain pen brings $21. A can of American asparagus is priced at $1.39. A man's shirt of inferior quality sells for $4.20.

Laundries charge 30 cents for washing a man's shirt. Having a man's suit pressed costs $1.15; having it cleaned and pressed, $2.77.

Restaurant prices have been stepped up several times in the last year. Twelve months ago, the Hotel Borg charged $1.45 for its large dinner. Now the price is $2.70, plus a 15 per cent service charge. A two-cup pot of coffee at the Borg costs 42 cents.

The price on luxury articles is almost prohibitive. A bottle of hair dressing which sells for ten cents in the United States is priced at $1.20 in Reykjavik.

The increasing prices have been paralleled by increasing wages. A worker who earned about $160 a year before the war now gets about $2,000. Icelandic seamen, who receive war risk allowances, do even better.

High salaries at the water front have attracted so many farm hands that the farm labor situation has been disrupted. The workers were forbidden to strike for wages above the levels fixed through government regulations. However, the workers adopted the tactics of merely quitting their jobs, and waiting to be rehired at better pay. With this situation tending to break down the law, the parliament, facing an election in a few weeks, repealed the law outright.

DEER VICIOUS

CLOVERDALE, Cal. (UP) — The first contact with a deer on his first deer hunt was disastrous for Jimmie Ledford, son of the chief of police.

A magnificent antlered buck jumped out of a thicket, dashed against Jimmie, knocked the rifle out of his hands and sprained his wrist. Then, Postmaster Ray G. Brackett, Jimmie's hunting partner, brought the buck down.

SELF DEFENSE?

AKRON — (UP) — Police have a new story for the books.

A 32-year-old man related that a chicken reached beyond the confines of a poultry market pen and pecked him on the hand. So he went inside "to get even with the rooster"—but was unable to explain feathers on his coat or a broken shop window.

The man was arrested on a suspicious person charge after thieves broke into the market and made off with chickens valued at $40.

WANTS QUIET BELLINGS

DEFIANCE — (UP) — Defiance weddings will be followed by quiet bellings in the future, according to an edict of Police Chief Karl A. Weaver. Weaver said there have been numerous complaints of noisy wedding processions, and bellings and that a city ordinance prohibiting such affairs will be enforced.

Inspired Song

"Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition!" That battle phrase, emanating from the Pearl Harbor attack, and now the title of a popular song, was inspired by Lieut. Howell Forgy, 31, of Haddonfield, N. J., a Navy chaplain, shown above. The phrase was originally credited to Captain William Maguire, a Catholic priest, but Chaplain Maguire denied having coined the expression. It was thought at first that Chaplain Maguire shouted it as he manned a gun on a battleship during the Pearl Harbor attack. Chaplain Maguire asserts he didn't man a gun during the engagement. The phrase "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition" came out of the Civil War.

URGES OHIOANS TO CUT WOOD

Play Safe, Lay in Supply of Fuel, Advice of Ohio State Forester.

COLUMBUS — (UP) — An Ohio State university forester says that while many Ohio woodlots are well stocked it would be advisable to cut a lot more fuel wood as protection against possible coal shortages next winter.

"People old enough to remember the situation during and following the first World war know that coal at the mines was no home," said E. W. Dean, "Transportation tie-ups have about the same effect as an actual shortage of coal."

He said that seasoned wood makes excellent fuel, but that from six to eight months are required to dry it properly. Much of the heat value in green wood is dissipated in vaporizing its own water content.

He recommended cutting wood early in the fall, and selecting as many dead trees as possible so the timber would dry quickly. Spare as many as possible the trees that will grow into good lumber, he added.

ADVISE PLAN FOR FARMERS

Fixed Costs, Operating Expenses Take 20 Per Cent of Income, Economists Say.

COLUMBUS — (UP) — Rural economists at Ohio State university

opined it was up to farm operators to devise a program for meeting fixed costs and operating expenses—estimated at 20 per cent of total cash receipts—and yet leave a labor income for the family.

Farm business volume can be boosted by tilling more acreage, increasing livestock or by getting better production from the same number of units. Increasing the number of units is more likely to raise expenses than a system of greater efficiency, say rural economists.

Crop yields can be increased by planting better seeds, improved use of fertilizer, better tillage practices, more care in harvesting, and other methods commonly used on successful farms. Improved stock, better rations, and culling will increase production in livestock units.

Farm account summaries from 60 average central Ohio livestock farms last year show a labor income variation from $235 to $7,187. In a group of east-central dairy-hog-poultry farms, the labor income varied from minus $154 to a high of $3,539.

JUST LIKE ORPHAN ANNIE FINDLAY — (UP) — Like Little Orphan Annie of comic strip fame, a group of Findlay girls headed by Col. Susan Chadbourne, 11, have organized a Junior Commandos Victory club here to promote the sale of war savings stamps.

EXPECT CUT

Rationing To Reduce Toll Bridge Revenue, Belief.

MARTINS FERRY — (UP) — War-rationed driving may be responsible for the threatened cut in revenue on Ohio's state-owned bridges, but receipts will not decline to such an extent as to affect the state's program of financing the bridge purchases, Ohio bridge commission members said while in Martins Ferry recently.

All bridges are "holding their own" in so far as revenue is concerned despite the sharp decrease in passenger auto travel. However, the commissioners refused to predict what the future holds as gasoline rationing is extended westward. Revenues are used to meet bond and interest charges as well as operating expenses.

Presenting Two Worthy Additions to the Mansfield Community Fund Family

The New Hospital Bureau

Society of St. Vincent De Paul

On March 1, 1942 when Mansfield General Hospital withdrew from the Community Fund family, a new agency replaced it.

It was the Hospital Bureau, created to aid low-income families in hospitalization.

THIS WAS THE FIRST TIME IN MANSFIELD HISTORY THAT A FUND WAS SET UP TO PROVIDE HOSPITALIZATION FOR PERSONS WITH SMALL AND INADEQUATE INCOMES.

The city has long provided hospitalization for indigents, but no attempt had been made to solve the problems of the families and individuals who were self-supporting, but could not pay hospital bills.

TWO TYPES OF CASES

There are two types of cases that are referred to the Hospital Bureau: The pre-admission applicant who asks for aid before entering the hospital, and whose case is referred to the Bureau by the family physician; and the emergency case which is admitted to the hospital in a hurry and the bill is later referred to the Bureau for payment.

A CONFIDENTIAL INVESTIGATION IS MADE IN ALL CASES BEFORE CERTIFIED FOR PAYMENT.

INVESTIGATION MADE

The Hospital Bureau does not pay bad debts for anyone. If, upon investigation, it is found that the individual or family can very well pay the bill with careful management, the Bureau cannot use contributors' funds to pay the bill. But if the income is barely adequate to meet the necessities of life, it is obvious that the case must have a helping hand to solve the problem of hospital bills. The Hospital Bureau extends that helping hand.

In the eight months that the Hospital Bureau has been in operation, it has paid for 92 individual cases and a total of 652 hospital days. It has paid hospitalization (including ordinary drugs, diagnostic X-ray and use of the surgery room) for maternity cases of War Brides, tonsilectomies, appendectomies, apoplexy, cancer, accident cases, and every type that passes through a medical and surgical institution.

The Hospital Bureau is a part of the Community Fund's Public Health program and will receive $7,230 from the Community Fund's 1943 budget.

Representing one of the oldest charitable organizations in the world, The Mansfield Unit of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, joined the Community Fund family this fall. The local unit was organized more than ten years ago and has gone quietly about its charitable and social service program throughout the past decade.

ALL OF THE MANSFIELD CATHOLIC CHARITIES ARE NOW ASSOCIATED UNDER THE BANNER OF THE ST. VINCENT DE PAUL SOCIETY AND FOR THE FIRST TIME ARE A PART OF A GREAT COMMUNITY-WIDE PROGRAM OF SOCIAL BETTERMENT. IT REPRESENTS THE INTERESTS OF MORE THAN 5,000 MANSFIELD CITIZENS, OR APPROXIMATELY ONE SIXTH OF OUR POPULATION.

The St. Vincent de Paul Society has a family welfare program, seeks to rehabilitate social mis-fits, and provides charitable aid.

CHARITABLE PROGRAM

Regardless of employment and wage increases there are always the "unemployable" with us; always the men and women who are not quite self-supporting. The St. Vincent de Paul Society reaches out to aid the sick and the poor with food, clothing and warm bedding. Last year it spent hundreds of dollars for material aid to the poor. The orphaned child also is one of the objects of its charity.

SOCIAL PROGRAM

Through its social worker, the St. Vincent de Paul Society reaches out for the "problem" boy and girl, helping them to adjust themselves to the pattern of a normal and stable life. The young, unwed mother, through the St. Vincent de Paul Society, is given care and protection and aided in finding a way to provide for herself and her child.

In the past the St. Vincent de Paul Society has raised its own funds, to carry on its year-round program. This year, in a co-operative movement to bring all fund-raising drives under one big campaign, St. Vincent joins the Community Fund family, which in turn, has joined hands with the War Agencies.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking For Myself.

I note with approval but mild alarm that more and more of the Broadway chorus girls and magazine cover models are deserting the footlights and the color pages to take courses in welding, riveting, and the assembly of airplane motors, eventually to occupy jobs in defense factories. This is magnificent but disturbing. It gives a night-clubber an uneasy thrill to realize that the blond babe perching lusciously across the stage of the Latin Quarter or the Versailles is here tonight, in all her chiffon finery, gone tomorrow to the danger-and-grease atmosphere of a bomber plant.

I keep wondering if they will ever come back, even after victory. It's like the old song people sang during the last war about the boys: "How're you gonna keep them down on the farm, after they've seen Pary?" That's what I wonder about these girls. How're you gonna get them back and coax them to smile merrily at the half-squinted, bald-headed daddies at the ringside tables? How're you gonna make them parade in a handful of beads in a smoky room to a loud band, after they've known the roaring excitement of a gun factory?

I mean, do you think any of them are going to pack up their tools after playing a part in history, and go back to doing a time step in a velvet cellar?

I don't. I believe any figure in the public eye wears his heart on his sleeve as offensively as George Jessel. He carries his torch not as an affliction, but rather as a decoration — old-fashioned, perhaps, as most mementoes are, but on him, becoming. . . Well, I have read the latest on the cup-of-foe-a-day decree with great equanimity. At the moment, I average about three cups a day, counting two dems after dinner as one cup. But I can do without two of them — or all of them, for that matter — without feeling that I have sacrificed my all. I have examined a list of all the things that have been rationed or eliminated — including sugar, red shoes, aluminum pots, brilliant skirts and nylon stockings — and I find I am not, really suffering yet. I imagine I bold, would bully her.

HOLLYWOOD—it may be the frigid air of the ice rink stages, but I've yet to meet in pictures a single ice star, feminine, who had a genuinely kind word to say for another ice star, feminine.

The love lost among them, if frozen over as it generally is, wouldn't make a postage stamp. The type generally found in night clubs. Actresses, many of them sincerely, will rave over the work of rival actresses. Athletes, generally sporting, will mean it when they shake hands with their winning or losing contestants. Ice queens, when rival names are mentioned, will freeze over, or say coldly "She's a very nice, period," or "Yes, I know her, period." They will thaw, when the talk is turned away from their own excellence and brilliance.

Belita, the latest of these charms to flash blades across movie ice, is obligingly definite about it. "Ice skaters," she said, "don't like each other."

Belita is a genuinely charming and pretty addition to the blade queens of Hollywood. She is only 18, tall, blond and pleasantly curved. However, lest rival queens be tempted to resort to physical violence in any future encounter, it should be recorded here also, that Belita packs a wallop. And, on occasion, a temper.

can do without even a few more things, and live.

I'm sorry to hear the Mardi Gras won't be held in New Orleans this year. Although I've never seen one, I've always wanted to and dreamed of visiting the glorious old city at Mardi Gras season; it's somehow like a fairy tale to think of a whole population dressing up and going gay in the streets all at the same time, forgetting everything but music and dancing and pleasure and pageantry until the clock strikes and the dawn breaks.

I was chatting with Vaughn Monroe, the bandleader, the other evening, and he gave what seemed to be a rather plausible explanation of why none of the war songs written during this conflict has become popular with the doughboys themselves. Vaughn's theory is that for the most part, songs aren't heard often enough by the soldiers to capture their fancies. The schedule of an army private is pretty crowded, and when a community sing or a tune for marching is indicated, it's much simpler for the sergeant to start up some old and universally familiar song than to pass out lyrics and lead sheets to a new ditty. Even a rousing success like "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition"—a marching natural—will take some time to percolate through the army.

I am rather happy that Clara Booth Luce has been nominated for congress, and quite hopeful that her perturbed entrance into politics will mark a New Trend. She seems just what the doctor ordered to rescue congress from the shabby state into which it has fallen. Say "Congressman" voter or cartoonist and the picture comes to mind of a seedy, dog-eared fellow in gaudies and black hat, moodily considering his declining prerogatives and apt to break into tears if anyone shouts "Roosevelt." It is impossible to envision Miss Booth in so bedraggled a condition.

I picture her sweeping into the House of Representatives, impeccably groomed, ineffably chic, like a lady in a magazine serial, talking the boys from their despair. Perhaps she will become something of a Joan of Arc to these simple legislators—a Joan-John, after the manner of Elizabeth Arden. Hatter Carnegie and John and Fred. No Representative, however, ever brash, could dream of libelizing in the face of Clara's decision stockings—and I find I am not, really suffering yet. I imagine I bold, would bully her.

WAIT STORY OF SECOND GIRL IN FLYNN CASE

Case Recessed Until Wednesday After Betty Hansen Tells of Actor's Assault.

(By Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES — A 17-year-old girl, having told how Errol Flynn allegedly raped her at a recent gay party in a fashionable Bel-Air home, stepped aside today to permit another 17-year-old girl to testify how the 33-year-old film actor also assertedly committed two statutory offenses against her while on a yachting trip in 1941.

First to testify at a preliminary hearing was blond Betty Hansen, a soda jerk.

Waiting to testify tomorrow, following a recess today, is Peggy LaRue Satterlee, daughter of a hotel chef. Recently a Hollywood nightclub entertainer, she charges that Flynn twice raped her while on a yachting trip to Catalina island in 1941 when she was but 15.

Flynn, his savoir faire somewhat wilted, sat grim-faced through most of Miss Hansen's testimony, but emitted a light-hearted chuckle when she testified she had tried to "play up" to him, but didn't think much of him as an actor.

Miss Hansen after a gay dinner party and a swim at the home of Fred McEvoy, wealthy British sportsman, said she became ill and Flynn accompanied her to an upstairs bedroom.

"He sat me on one of the twin beds," she testified. "I told him I didn't want to take a nap. He locked the door. Then he came back to me."

The girl said Flynn disrobed her. Then, she said, he took off all his clothes, except his shoes. After the alleged statutory offense, Miss Hansen testified if Lynne Boyer, one of the guests, knocked on the door, saying she wanted to use the telephone, but that the actor told her to use the one downstairs.

Testifying later, Miss Boyer said: "Flynn told me I could come in if I wanted to. He said he was taking a shower."

Hesitating, Miss Boyer then amended: ". . . we were taking a shower. Then I heard a giggle from the room."

Charley Barnett's band brought a hot brand of swing to the Madison stage yesterday that had the jitterbug fans keeping time with their hands and their feet throughout the performance.

The band of 16 made four appearances and in the words of the maestro himself "the audience was not permitted to go to sleep."

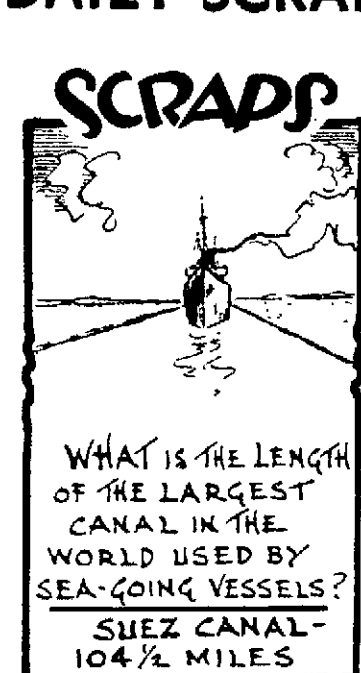

"Tubby" Jackson, the bass player, and two septa musicians in the brass section, were among the featured entertainers.

Nita Bradley, the girl singer, and Huck Andrews, baritone, were also given solo spots with the orchestra which presented as its two outstanding numbers a "Duke Ellington arrangement of 'Solitude,'" and Barnett's latest recording, "Victory Walk."

CITY WORKERS RETURN TO JOBS

Cincinnati Employees Accept Pay Raise, Gas Company Men Get Proposal.

(By Associated Press)
CINCINNATI — The strike of gas plant maintenance workers was settled today and the men prepared to return to work.

CINCINNATI — City waterworks, waste collection and street department employees ended a six-day-old strike today, and gas company maintenance crews who walked out Friday received a settlement proposal.

At the same time representatives of the Gas, Coke, and Chemical Workers Local 12045, District 50, UMW, and of the Cincinnati Gas and Electric company, conferred with John F. Addicks, U. S. labor conciliator, in a four-hour session.

Addicks said that if the 550 gas company workers approved in a union meeting today a peace agreement upon in the conference, the walkout would end promptly. The dispute involves the company's selection of 34 men for lay-offs necessitated by wartime curtailments in construction and appliance installation.

Gas service to consumers has not been interrupted and an emergency repair crew has remained on duty.

The strikers, originally asked 25 per cent wage increases and later agreed to accept boosts equal to U. S. department of labor cost-of-living increase percentages for the year ended last Oct. 1.

The increases approved last night were four cents an hour for 369 hourly wage workers, about equal to $80-a-year boosts granted 3,910 salaried employees.

OUTLINES RELIEF DUTIES IN CASE OF DISASTER OR ATTACK

The importance of being prepared to act in the event of enemy action or any kind of community disaster was emphasized by Miss Thelma Welch, disaster field representative for the eastern Red Cross area, when she appeared before the disaster preparedness and relief committee operating under the Richmond county chapter of the Red Cross here yesterday.

Speaking at the second mobilization to be held by chairmen and representatives of each of the 10 sub-divisions responsible for rescue, medical aid, food, clothing and shelter in the event of an emergency, Miss Welch outlined the specific duties of each unit in preparing for disaster and also the responsibilities that each would assume during the emergency period.

The meeting held in the Red Cross executive headquarters was the first of a series of similar meetings Miss Welch will conduct in Ohio. Prior to the general mobilization the disaster representative held a separate conference for the sub-division on registration and information headed by Mrs. Louis J. Ott.

Mrs. Ott's committee has the task of registering all civilians housed in designated shelters during the time of disaster or attack and also of maintaining records that will help unite families after the emergency has passed.

Miss Welch recommended that an inventory be made of all buildings, public and otherwise, that could be adopted for emergency shelter.

Under the Ohio state agreement with civilian defense, the Department of Public Welfare and the Red Cross the latter organization is responsible for supplying food, clothing and shelter on a mass basis, the disaster representative said.

Robert Black, chairman of the disaster committee, presided at the meeting. Judge G. E. Kaibfleisch, co-ordinator of Mansfield civilian defense, Mayor W. J. Locke and L. W. Birch, county chairman of the Red Cross attended the mobilization session.

Thomas F. Knight, 47, Taken By Death at Hospital.
Thomas F. Knight, 47, of 202 North Mulberry street, died in Mansfield General hospital Monday night following a three months' illness.

Born in Dover, O., Mr. Knight came to Mansfield 13 years ago. He was employed at the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company until ill health forced his retirement.

His survivors include: one daughter, Hila Mae Todd, of Youngstown; one son, George, at home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Knight, of Struthers; four brothers, Ellis, of Struthers; Edward, of the U. S. Army, Joseph, of Mansfield and George, of Youngstown; and two sisters, Mrs. Sam Eyo, of Youngstown and Mrs. Raymond Anderson, of Struthers.

The body will be taken from the Geiger Funeral home here to the Davidson Funeral home at Struthers where funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday with interment in the Riverside Cemetery at Poland, Ohio.

Test of Popular Feeling on Draft, Rationing Watched In Today's Balloting.
(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON — To President Roosevelt, who has dominated American politics for a decade, today's election brings not only the first voter reaction to conduct of the war but, to a degree, a new check-up on his national popularity.

As commander in chief of the armed forces and as president of a people united against the Axis enemy, Mr. Roosevelt can claim the unwavering support of every loyal citizen.

But he also is cast in another character. He is the political leader of a government compelled by war to uphold the normal way of life and inflict the inevitable bruises of a war economy.

In this role Mr. Roosevelt cannot be wholly separated from the party label on congressional ballots cast today. If the voters in any appreciable numbers decide to replace Democrats with members of another party, a share of the dissatisfaction thus expressed probably would head back to the national party leadership. That leadership is and has been since 1932 Mr. Roosevelt.

In an off-year election, when the presidential office is not at stake, the voter who doesn't like the way things are going usually takes it out on his senator and representative.

Finding expression in some form today will be the sentiment of voters toward gasoline rationing and price-fixing, toward wage stabilization and farm prices, toward sugar and coffee shortages, the draft and the higher cost of living.

Mr. Roosevelt watches this election from the unique position of the only president to be returned to the White House three times. And he continues to so dominate the political pictures that while Republicans scan election returns for 1944 presidential possibilities—looking particularly toward Dewey in New York, Bricker in Ohio and Stassen in Minnesota—little has been heard about a Democratic possibility emerging at the 1942 polls.

The war and Mr. Roosevelt's direction of it probably will forge the party's next nominee.

CALCUTTA — (AP)—A devastating cyclone which swept over Bengal Oct. 16 resulted in the death of 11,000 persons in the Minnapore and Parganas districts, it was reported today.

The cyclone lasted 24 hours and forced ashore a tidal wave from the Bay of Bengal which washed over the mainland and devastated a large area.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking For Myself.

I note with approval but mild alarm that more and more of the Broadway chorus girls and magazine cover models are deserting the footlights and the color pages to take courses in welding, riveting, and the assembling of airplane motors eventually to occupy jobs in defense factories. This is magnificent but disturbing. It gives a night-clubber an uneasy thrill to realize that the blond babe perching on a grinning, lustily across the stage of the Latin Quarter or the Versailles is here tonight, in all her chiffon finery, gone tomorrow to the dungaree-and-grease atmosphere of a bomber plant.

I keep wondering if they will ever come back, even after victory. It's like the old song people sang during the last war about the boys—"How're you gonna keep them down on the farm, after they've seen Pary?" That's what I wonder about these girls. How're you gonna get them back and coax them to smile meaningfully at the half-smiled bald-headed daddies at the ringside tables? How're you gonna make them parade in a handful of beads in a smoky room to a loud band, after they've known the roaring excitement of a gun factory?

I mean, do you think any of them are going to pack up their tools after playing a part in history, and go back to doing a time step in a velvet cellar?

I don't.

I don't believe any figure in the public eye wears his heart on his sleeve as inoffensively as George Jessel. He carries his torch not as an affliction, but rather as a decoration—old-fashioned, perhaps, as most ornaments are, but on him, becoming. Well, I have read the latest on the cup-of-evil-for-a-day decree with great equanimity. At the moment, I average about three cups a day, counting two dems after dinner as one cup, but I can do without two of these—or all of them, for that matter—without feeling that I have sacrificed my all. I have examined a list of all the things that have been rationed or eliminated—excluding sugar, red shoes, aluminum pots, bouffant skirts and nylon stockings—and I find I am not really suffering yet. I imagine I can do without even a few more things, and live.

I'm sorry to hear the Mardi Gras won't be held in New Orleans this year. Although I've never seen one, I've always wanted to and dreamed of visiting the glamorous old city at Mardi Gras season; it's somehow like a fairy tale to think of a whole population dressing up and going gay in the streets all at the same time, forgetting everything but music and dancing and pleasure and pageantry until the clock strikes and the dawn breaks.

I was chatting with Vaughn Monroe, the band leader, the other evening, and he gave what seemed to be a rather plausible explanation of why none of the war songs written during this conflict has become popular with the doughboys themselves. Vaughn's theory is that for the most part, songs aren't heard often enough by the soldiers to capture their fancies. The schedule of an army private is pretty crowded, and when a community sing or a tune for marching for the sergeant to start up some old and universally familiar song to pass out lyrics and lead sheets to a new duty. Even a rousing success like "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition"—a marching natural—will take some time to percolate through the army.

I am rather happy that Clare Booth Luce has been nominated for congress, and quite hopeful that her perturbed entrance into politics will mark a New Trend. She seems just what the doctor ordered to rescue congress from the shabby state into which it has fallen. Say "congressman" to voter or cartoonist and the picture comes to mind of a seedy, dog-eared fellow in gaudies and black hat, moodily considering his declining prerogatives and apt to break into tears if anyone shouts "Roosevelt." It is impossible to envision Miss Boothie in so bedraggled a condition.

I picture her sweeping into the House of Representatives, impeccably groomed, inoffensively chic, like a lady in a magazine serial, rallying the boys from their despair. Perhaps she will become something of a Joan of Arc to the simple legislators—a super-Joan, given for battle by Elizabeth Arden, Hattie Carnegie and John and Fred. No Representative, however brash, could dream of filibustering in the face of Clare's decision stockings—and I find I am not really suffering yet. I imagine I

Case Recessed Until Wednesday After Betty Hansen Tells of Actor's Assault.

(By Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES — A 17-year-old girl, having told how Errol Flynn allegedly raped her at a recent gay party in a fashionable Bel-Air home, stepped aside today to permit another 17-year-old girl to testify how the 33-year-old film actor also assertedly committed two statutory offenses against her while on a yachting trip in 1941.

First to testify at a preliminary hearing was blond Betty Hansen, a soda jerk.

Waiting to testify tomorrow, following a recess today, is Peggy LaRue Satterlee, daughter of a hotel chef. Recently a Hollywood nightclub entertainer, she charges that Flynn twice raped her while on a yachting trip to nearby Catalina island in 1941 when she was but 13.

Flynn, his savior faire somewhat wilted, sat grim-faced through most of Miss Hansen's testimony, but emitted a light-hearted chuckle when she testified she had tried to "play up" to him, but didn't think much of him as an actor.

Miss Hansen after a gay dinner party and a swim at the home of Fred McEvoy, wealthy British sportsman, said she became ill and Flynn accompanied her to an upstairs bedroom.

"He sat me on one of the twin beds," she testified. "I told him I didn't want to take a nap. He locked the door. Then he came back to me."

The girl said Flynn disrobed her. Then, she said, he took off all his clothes, except his shoes.

After the alleged statutory offense, Miss Hansen testified Flynn Boyer, one of the guests, knocked on the door, saying she wanted to use the telephone, but that the actor told her to use the one downstairs.

Testifying later, Miss Boyer said: "Flynn told me I could come in if I wanted to. He said he was taking a shower."

Hesitating, Miss Boyer then answered: "... we were taking a shower. Then I heard a giggle from the room."

Charlie Barnett's band brought a hot brand of swing to the Madison stage yesterday that had the jitterbug fans keeping time with their hands and their feet throughout the performance.

The band of 16 made four appearances and in the words of the maestro himself "the audience was not permitted to go to sleep."

"Tubby" Jackson, the bass player, and two sepi musicians in the brass section, were among the featured entertainers.

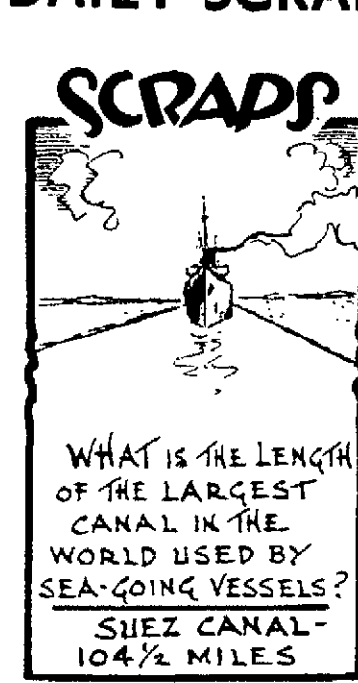

Nita Bradley, the girl singer, and Huck Andrews, baritone, were also given solo spots with the orchestra, which presented as its two outstanding numbers a Duke Ellington arrangement of "Solitude," and Barnett's latest recording, "Victory Walk."

Belita, who is starring in "Silver Skates," took to the ice at four years of age, primarily as an aid to dancing. Her mother thought all sports of value to rhythm, and Belita played all the sports with brothers Dick and Bill. She still considers herself primarily a dancer but likes skating money.

Her full name is Belita Gladys Olive Lynne Jepson-Turner, but when she's 25, she says, she's going to change it—"quit the whole thing and get married and have three children."

So if the other ice queens will just be nice for seven years more, Belita's wallop shouldn't bother them.

Members of Delano lodge of the United Steel Workers union now in the armed forces will enjoy Christmas through efforts of fellow members serving on the home front in Mansfield war plants. William Bell, president of Delano, announces that gift packages have been sent to all members, "all the way from the Solomons to Iceland and Alaska." More than 150 chunks of cheer are on their way to the fighting members, at a cost of well over $500 to members.

Police are of the opinion that there's one sought-for thief whose greatest penchant is for cash rather than writing. They don't even feel that his check-issuing demands should require so much equipment. Earl R. Koehneiser, manager of the Charles Ritter company, 71 North Main street, reported that a shoplifter yesterday escaped with a tray of fountain pens, valued at from $12.50 to $15 each and $135 in all. This is the only reported case of shoplifting in several weeks.

Will Mansfield police be confronted with another Peeping Tom search? The question arose this morning after a Daisy street woman reported that as she was about to retire last night a flashlight glare was thrown on her suddenly from a prowler outside the bedroom window. She was blinded by the light and could not obtain a description of the peeper. During July and August police sought a "thin man" molester of women on the streets at night. In the last two weeks several cases of prowling have been reported, none indicating that city of the homes was attempted.

Cyclists, Car Drivers Held on Speed Charges.

Two Youngstown youths were arrested late yesterday charged with speeding 65 miles an hour on their motorcycles, one speeding autoist posted bond and four traffic violators were fined by Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in municipal court.

Joseph Zielski and John Granchie failed to out-speed Motorcycle Patrolman Charles Lettiza on Park avenue west. Each posted bond of $16.30 and went to hearing. John Murdock, Columbus truck driver arrested by Motorcycle Patrolman Earl Korn for driving 48 miles an hour on Park avenue west, also posted bond.

Thomas B. Jacobs, whose truck skidded into two passenger autos Sunday evening, was fined $100 and costs on the charge of unsafe operation. Of this $90 was suspended when he paid $45 in damages to the other operators.

Paul Dickson lost his driving rights for one year and was fined $50 and costs on the charge of driving an auto while under the influence of alcohol.

HOLLYWOOD—It may be the frigid air of the ice rink stages, but I've yet to meet in pictures a single ice star, feminine, who had a genuinely kind word to say for another ice star, feminine.

The love lost among them, if frozen over as it generally is, wouldn't make a postage stamp rink of the type generally found in night clubs.

Actresses, many of them sincerely, will rave over the work of rival actresses. Athletes, generally, will mean it when they shake hands with their winning or losing contestants. Ice queens, when rival names are mentioned, will freeze over, or say coldly "She's very nice, period," or "Yes, I know her, period." They will thaw, when the talk is turned asap to their own excellence and brilliance.

Belita, the latest of these charmers to flash blades across movie ice, is obligingly definite about it. "Ice skaters," she said, "don't like each other."

Belita is a genuinely charming and pretty addition to the blade queens of Hollywood. She is only 18, tall, blond and pleasantly curved. However, lest rival queens be tempted to resort to physical violence in any future encounter, it should be recorded here also that Belita packs a wallop. And, on occasion, a temper.

He made his estimate in an article published by the government newspaper Izvestia.

He said the Nazis' losses were equivalent to the number of births in Germany over a 10 to 15 year period.
